EIGHTH ARMY MOVING AHEAD

First Pictures of Mareth Line Battle - - - British Big Guns Roar

These radiophotos, sent from Cairo, Egypt are the first to reach the United States showing the current battle for the strategic Mareth line in Tunisia. The British Eighth army, led by Gen. Sir Bernard L. Montgomery, is here pitted against Nazi Field Marshal Erwin Rommel's Axis forces. Photo at left shows British medium guns during a night assault. Photo at right was taken from an armored British scout car as a "bangalore" torpedo is exploded to destroy barbed wire.

Score Gains In Rear of Axis West of Gabes

Rommel Hurls Waves of Infantry and Tanks Against British In Mareth Line; Americans Continue Drives From El Guetar and Maknassy.

(By Associated Press)

ALLIED HEADQUARTERS, NORTH AFRICA—British Eighth army infantrymen have made some advances and improved their positions on the southern front while local activity prevailed in the Gafsa and Maknassy sectors at the center, a communique announced today.

(An Algiers radio broadcast recorded in London reported that American forces were continuing their advance southeast of El Guetar, on the road to Gabes, and also made further local gains in the Maknassy sector.

("The British Eighth army made some advance in the El Hamma area (west of Gabes and at the rear of the Mareth line), rendering the position of the Africa Corps difficult," the broadcast said.

(Rommel was reported launching tanks and infantry in successive waves against the Eighth army front in an effort to reduce the salient driven into his defenses.)

(The communique did not specify the sector of the British gains, but an Algiers radio broadcast said the Eighth army "made some advance in the Al Hamma area, rendering the position of the Africa Corps difficult."

(The British radio, in a broadcast recorded in New York by CBS, quoted the Algiers station as saying further that Axis counter-attacks had been smashed in this region and the British forces had completed occupation of a hill "overlooking the whole of the Gabes plain."

(This was a reference to the flanking movement behind the Mareth line which was reported Wednesday to have driven to a point eight miles south of El Hamma, a major Axis air base 20 miles west of Gabes.)

"There was little activity in the Gafsa and Maknassy sectors, where the enemy made local demonstrations, but no major attacks developed," the communique said.

(The Algiers radio, in a broadcast prior to the issuance of the communique, said American troops were continuing their advance southeast of El Guetar, on the road to Gabes, and also made local gains in the Maknassy zone.)

Heavy blows by the Allied aerial squadrons, which boast superiority over the German and Italian air forces, were maintained.

Six Allied aircraft were reported missing from operations on which, in addition to destruction wrought among Axis troop concentrations, supplies and transport facilities, 14 Axis planes were shot down.

Bombers attacked an enemy air field and motor transports near Sfax and Sousse Wednesday night. Fighter patrols shot down an Axis bomber.

(The Algiers radio said Rommel lost 40 of 100 tanks which he threw into counterattacks in the Mareth zone Tuesday.)

(Axis communiques testified to the bitterness of the conflict. The Italian war bulletin, broadcast from Rome and recorded by the Associated Press, said renewed Allied attacks were repelled and "losses inflicted on the enemy (in an unstated period) have risen to 294 prisoners, 65 tanks and 16 guns."

(The German version, broadcast from Berlin, said thrusts of local importance carried out by the British and American formations on the Tunisian front collapsed "whereas one of our own counter-thrusts (the sector not specified) proved successfull.")

U.S. TAXPAYERS GOUGED, CLAIM

Rep. Reed Says Little Fellows Borrow at Rates Up To 240 Per Cent.

(By International News Service)

WASHINGTON — With Republican leader Joseph Martin, jr., claiming victory for the Ruml plan for the first time, the house today heard charges that the 1942 tax burden has driven millions of small taxpayers to the "loan sharks" who have lent them $600,000,000 at rates as high as 240 per cent.

The statement was made by Rep. Reed of New York, a ranking Republican on the ways and means committee, as the house began its second day of debate on a new tax collection policy. Reed said:

"I have reliable information—and the whole report will soon be made public—that $100,000,000 has been loaned, under-cover, at interest rates of from 120 to 240 per cent, and $500,000,000 at from 30 to 36 per cent.

"The lending agencies estimate here will be 5,000,000 borrowers for income tax payments of the next installment, June 15. There are millions of taxpayers who shudder when they think of being driven by the administration's bill into the jaws of the loan sharks."

The administration's measure would retain the present year-late system of collecting taxes but would offer "incentive" discounts ranging from 1 to 6 per cent to persons willing to pay two years' taxes in one year to get on a current pay-as-you-go basis. The GOP is seeking to substitute for this unday Papers To Give New Ration Value Table.

WASHINGTON —(AP)— Sunday morning newspapers will tell merican housewives of new point alues for processed fruits and egetables, and the best guess is oupon costs will be substantially wer.

OPA officials declined to cite pecific figures but indicated umerous reductions, and a few ncreases, could be expected when the new table is made ublic.

Various kinds of cans, bottles nd packages, especially of fruits nd larger sizes of other products, apparently are due for reiced point values. Increases will applied to items that are selling faster than they can be reaced on store shelves.

Trade sources and consumers ike have criticized many of the esent point values as too high.

Soldier Surrenders In Bucyrus Slaying

Driven by Hunger From 4-Day Hiding Place In Barn, He Admits Killing Waitress, Then Kissing Corpse

BUCYRUS—Driven from his hiding place in a barn by hunger and cold, Pvt. Glore Bevard, 33, surrendered to officers at Camp Millard, Bucyrus, at midnight Thursday and authorities said he confessed the murder of Mrs. Wilma Reed, 29, Bucyrus waitress, Sunday night in an apartment they had shared.

Prosecutor Leo Scanlon and Police Chief Arthur Stuckert were questioning Bevard today for more details of the slaying. No charge had been filed at noon but the prosecutor said he would file a murder charge.

Bevard told authorities he had been hiding in a barn east of Bucyrus since early Monday and had received no food in four days. Although residents of the farm entered the barn frequently during the four days he was there, he kept under cover, Bevard said.

"I killed Wilma; I choked her when she jumped on me and bit me after I went into the apartment Sunday night," police quoted Bevard as saying.

The army private, father of five children in Illinois, related that he remained with the woman's body until 5 a. m. Monday, even after he knew she was dead. The body was not found until Monday afternoon.

He said he kissed the corpse frequently during the hours he remained in the room.

Mrs. Reed had been beaten and strangled. She apparently had been

Hold Session on Formulating Program To Help Employes Grow Own Food.

Representatives of seven Mansfield industries yesterday evening exchanged ideas on developing victory gardens for employes while a number of other plant operators signified their intention of adopting some food-producing program for the benefit of their workers.

This was announced by Mrs. John M. Pierce, chief of war services, following the conference in Office of Civilian Defense headquarters, third floor of City Hall.

Tappan Stove company officials reported that ample ground is available, that a tool shed will be provided and a guard patrol the growing crops at night. The soil will be worked up into planting condition and fertilized, it was explained.

Westinghouse representatives said that they will aid workers in obtaining extra gasoline, if neces-

Liquor Dealers Warned Price Ceilings Stay

Ultimate consumers of the liquor purchased in other states by tavern keepers must not be required to absorb the additional cost by being charged more cash or served in glasses with thicker bottoms, Office of Price Administration officials warned today.

Edward C. Welsh, price executive of the Cleveland regional OPA office, told retailers today that ceiling price schedules must be rigidly complied with. Bruce Huber, teacher at Johnny Appleseed Junior high school and recently-named member of the regional price committee, said today he has not yet been equipped with a whiskey price list.

WAR PLANT HIT

Blast Wrecks Two Buildings, Sets Fires In New York.

NEW YORK—(INS)—Two buildings of a Staten Island plant engaged in war work were destroyed and dozens of others threatened by a fire that followed an explosion today.

First reports indicated no deaths or injuries as firemen battled the stubborn blaze.

Buildings No. 95 and 96 of the Unexcelled Manufacturing company, Graniteville, were destroyed. Hundreds of air raid wardens, auxiliary firemen and the company's own fire brigade assisted the regular firefighters.

It was learned that an explosion occurred in Building No. 96 and flames followed quickly.

All the buildings are small, one story, wooden structures, separated because of fire danger, spread over a five-acre plot of ground.

Ann Sheridan Offers Expert Advice on Sweater Problem

By FREDERICK C. OTHMAN
(UP Hollywood Correspondent)

HOLLYWOOD—If the labor department really wants to appoint her Special Commissioner in Charge of the War-Time Sweater Problem, Ann Sheridan, an acknowledged expert on same, announced today that she gladly would do everything in her power to keep American women from having the wool pulled over their eyes.

She said mere men in the labor department's conciliation department had no special interest in sweaters (that's what she thinks!) and that she believed a woman should become the government's SCICWTSP.

The problem, as Miss Sheridan knows and as the labor department has discovered, is serious. The sweater-wearing ladies at the Bridgeport, Conn., plant of the United Aircraft company, brought it to a head. The manager of this concern (reported to be be near-sighted, himself) sent them home

MEAT GOING, GOING, GONE

'Sold Out' Signs Appearing as Mansfielders Gobble Up Available Stocks.

"Sold out" signs began appearing in Mansfield meat markets today as the pre-rationing buying rush started in earnest.

Long lines formed early this morning in front of meat markets that had supplies and proprietors of these expressed the opinion that their stocks for today will be wiped out long before closing time.

One down town market hung up a sign, "No meat until this afternoon" a few hours after it opened this morning. An extra supply was expected from packers for afternoon trade.

If the buying spree continues at its present pace through tomorrow and tomorrow night, dealers said they doubted if they would have stocks on hand when sale by point rationing starts Monday.

As an example of how stocks were quickly exhausted, the proprietor of another down town market said a side of beef was placed on sale when the market opened this morning. Twenty minutes later there were only a few cuts left.

Meanwhile, other cities in Ohio and throughout the nation, were experiencing similar rushes. In Dayton only the 200,000 pounds extra meat specially allocated to the city by the O. P. A. relieved the critical meat shortage there.

Tractors Owned By Japs Idle In U. S. Warehouses

LOS ANGELES —(AP)— Gathering dust in Southern California warehouses, an official of the War Production board declares, are many Japanese-owned tractors, trucks and other farm machinery sorely needed on America's food production front?

How to get it out and put it to work?

Burnette J. Daniel, regional WPB counsel, says:

"If the government can take the American farmer's sixth automobile tire, it should be able to take this unused, Japanese-owned farm machinery."

Under existing laws, Daniels said, every Japanese who stored farm implements prior to evacuation would have to be contacted individually—"the war would be over before we got it released."

An official of the department of agriculture recently estimated 267 Jap tractors are stored in Southern California.

Congress, Farm Chiefs Hail Naming of Davis

Agricultural Organizations Demand New Food Boss Be Given Full Control Over Prices.

BULLETIN

WASHINGTON—(U.P.)—President Roosevelt today said one of the first tasks of the new food administrator, Chester C. Davis, will be to establish some sort of land army, to assist in farm production.

(By International News Service)

WASHINGTON—Congressional and farm leaders today widely acclaimed the appointment of Chester C. Davis, of St. Louis, long associated with agriculture, as the nation's new "food boss" with the latter demanding also that he be given complete authority over food prices.

Edward A. O'Neal, president of the American Farm Bureau federation, said that Davis, who will serve as director of food production and distribution on leave from his post as president of the St. Louis Federal Reserve bank, must be "free from the obstacles of conflicting authority."

"In particular the food administrator must have control over food prices if he is to obtain the maximum production possible," O'Neal said. "Agriculture must be fully recognized as a vital war industry."

Similar sentiments were voiced by Fred Brenckman, Washington representative of the National Grange, who asserted that the announcement of Davis' appointment "failed signally to give any assurance that he will be given control over the most essential part of the program—price fixing."

"We trust there is some understanding between President Roosevelt and Davis on this matter," Brenckman said.

Government quarters were un-

TEST DELAYED

Mansfield Black-Out Won't Take Place Till Later.

With this week passing without any warning of a district blackout test, Office of Civilian Defense officials today were of the opinion that Mansfield and Richland county will not be required to participate in any regional demonstration prior to rigid state-wide tests planned for late April and May.

Judge G. E. Kalbfleisch, defense coordinator, had been tentatively advised to expect a black-out warning last Wednesday night but was told later that inability of Canton and Alliance to get ready for it was holding up the proposed 20-county test.

Judge Kalbfleisch, Police Captain Jesse J. Schwab, defense commander, and other OCD officials are confident that recent sectional and city-wide dimout tests have qualified Mansfield and the county for the black-out.

RAF fighters rose to meet enemy planes which twice approached, and one of the raiders was reported downed.

THROWN 30 FEET BY GAS BLAST

L. L. Rinehart, Farmer, School Board Member, Burned; House, Barn Saved.

Thrown nearly 30 feet by the force of a gasoline explosion late Thursday on his Sandusky township farm, Lewis L. Rinehart, 51, Richland county board of education and fair board member, suffered second degree burns on his face, neck, and hands.

He was admitted to Galion City hospital about 7 p. m. Thursday. Attendants there said his condition was favorable today.

Rinehart was blown through the door of the pump house on his farm when a 250-gallon tank of gasoline exploded on the second floor of the building. Gasoline leaking through the floor onto a hot motor in the basement is believed to have caused the blast.

The fire which followed the explosion destroyed the pump house and a nearby milk house. The Crestline fire department saved the house and barn on the farm. The big tank had been filled only a short time before the blast.

Rinehart is a former president of the county board of education and a member of the county board of health. He is active in farm organization work in the county.

Police Reach Impasse in Hunt for Missing Girl, 17.

PORTSMOUTH (U.P.) Police officials admitted today they had reached an impasse in their search for Willa Billy Ramey, 17-year-old blond Portsmouth high school co-ed who disappeared from her home one week ago today.

The girl reportedly was on her way to school, where she is a junior, when she disappeared. Mrs. Leonidas Ramey Peed, the girl's mother, told police the girl was an exemplary daughter and ideal student.

UNSLACKENED: Reds Keep Up Heavy Pressure on Smolensk

BULLETIN

MOSCOW—(U.P.)—Russian troops have broken through the primary German fortifications east of Smolensk and now are storming the second defense line along an unidentified river west of the upper Dnieper, front reports said today.

(By Associated Press)

MOSCOW—Before mounting German resistance, the Red army steadily pressed on in one sector of the western front today and halted to consolidate its positions in another, but the general pressure toward Smolensk was unslackened.

On the northern Donets river battleground, the Russians fought bitterly against large units of Germans, the battle shifting this way and that in the Belgorod sector where, the midday communique said, the Soviets recaptured two settlements they had lost previously to the Nazis.

(The Russian midnight communique as recorded by the London Soviet radio monitor declared Russian artillery had smashed German tank and infantry columns making new attempts to cross to the eastern shore of the Donets river east of Kharkov.)

(It reported Soviet troops north of Chuguev successfully defended a height against a tank and mortar array supporting a German infantry regiment in one sector and Russian field guns in another sector killed more than 500 attacking Germans. Russian firepower also dealt heavy punishment to German forces northeast of Kharkov, it was said.)

It was obvious from the charac-

SPREAD: Allied Bombers Hit Jap Bases 1,700 Miles Apart

(By Associated Press)

ALLIED HEADQUARTERS IN AUSTRALIA—Japanese bases 1,700 miles apart in the island are above Australia were blasted by Gen. Douglas MacArthur's bombers yesterday, with Amboina, 600 miles northwest of Darwin, hit hard in one raid and Rabaul smashed heavily for the second time this week.

An Allied communique said quarter-ton bombs hit directly on two enemy cargo vessels, one of 8,000 tons and one of 6,000 tons, in Amboina harbor, and that flames shot up from wharf areas.

The communique said there was no effort at interception by Japanese fighter planes at Rabaul.

Allied bombers hit a wharf and warehouses at Gasmata, New Britain, and one plane made seven runs over the Uhili area in a three-hour night attack, it was announced.

The airdrome at Lae, New Guinea, was raided twice, and low-altitude attacks were made on buildings at Salamaua.

Pilot Dives Plane at School To Warn of Fire.

CHICKASHA, Okla. —(AP)— An aviator, identity unknown, dived on the grade school house at Verden and undoubtedly saved the lives of a number of children who might have been trapped by flames that were consuming the building.

The pilot apparently saw the smoke coming from the roof of the building. He dived, to attract attention. Softball players on the school ground looked up at the plane, saw smoke pouring from the building and sounded the fire alarm.

The 261 children in the building reached safety only a few minutes ahead of the spreading flames. The plane flew onward.

Decisions will be made in time for winners to attend the showing next week of the "Air Force" movie.

Sours Tells How To Make License Stickers Stick

COLUMBUS—(AP)—Ohio's 1943 automobile license stickers will stick, highway director Hal G. Sours insisted today.

He said he had received reports the stickers worked loose from windshields.

"If the stickers are placed on a cold windshield out of doors in sub-freezing weather, a thin film of ice might form between the paper and glass," Sours said. "This also might occur if the sticker is applied in a garage and the car is taken out immediately."

He recommended dipping the sticker in warm water to wet it instead of cold water. This preferably should be done in the owner's garage after the car is put away for the night.

"Properly applied that sticker is on to stay," Sours remarked.

VICTORY GARDENER MUST STUDY TYPE OF SOIL ON HIS PROPERTY

COLUMBUS —(AP)— Soil is the most important factor affecting plant growth, D. C. Kiplinger, Ohio State university extension specialist warns Victory gardeners. Other important factors in the selection of a garden site are exposure to sunshine, slope, drainage, accessibility, and protection from winds.

If subsoil from excavation has been placed on the surface, Kiplinger says, the soil will require conditioning before a good garden can be grown. It will need well rotted manure, leaf mold, rotted plant residues, peat moss, or muck, which should be spaded into the soil to provide organic matter and to allow air to enter. Sifted ashes or sand will lighten heavy soils, and sandy soils will require watering.

Gardens which are distant from the house are too likely to be neglected, he believes, suggesting that more satisfactory results can be obtained from inferior soil near the home than on distant good soil.

He advises staking for tall plants in exposed sections and recommends locations south of buildings or tree windbreaks. South slopes will receive the most sunlight, although any slope will provide air and water drainage. Gardeners should avoid hilly areas where topsoil is likely to be washed away, and low spots which cannot be drained effectively.

COLLEGE ELECTS WOMAN TO HEAD STUDENT GROUP

Co-ed Named to Highest Post at Ashland Usually Held By Men.

ASHLAND — Miss Gertrude Boardman, Hagerstown, Md., is the newly-elected president of the Ashland college student council, an honor seldom awarded a coed and regarded as the highest administrative office available to a stuent.

Miss Boardman, a sophomore, is the daughter of Rev. and Mrs. Edwin Boardman of Hagerstown, Md. Her father was a student on the campus many years ago.

Both opponents of Miss Boardman in the election were men. She succeeds Dwight Kline of Polk who was called into active service this week. Miss Boardman will assume her office late this semester and continue it next fall and winter.

Active on the campus, the president-elect has numbered among her activities during the past two years' membership in Y. W. C. A., Spotlighters' club, Women's Athletic association and Girls' Gospel team. She has held administrative posts in the last three organizations.

Election of Miss Boardman hints to the fact that few boys expect to be available when college opens in September. Almost all boys enrolled this semester expect to be in uniform within the next few months.

The student council is the self government group on the campus and determines policy regarding student activities. Presidents of recognized campus organizations are members of the council.

FREDERICKTOWN O. E. S. MARKS ANNIVERSARY OF ITS FOUNDING

FREDERICKTOWN—The 46th anniversary of Ann Hill chapter, O. E. S., was observed Wednesday evening with the annual meeting.

The dining room was decorated in victory garden theme. Candles in the form of ears of corn lighted the room. Centerpieces of vegetables and pottery flowercontainers made in the shape of vegetables were filled with endive, lettuce and spinach. Favors were packages of garden seeds. The young women who waited were wore corsages of tiny vegetables.

Mrs. Ray McClelland planned the following program: welcome by the worthy matron, Helen Mulgin, who introduced Mrs. Bird of Mt. Vernon, the first lady matron of Ann Hill chapter; vocal solo by Mrs. Bruce T. Riley, accompanied by Mrs. Maxwell; accordion solo, Boyd Blackburn; vocal solo, Mrs. Riley; talk by Prof. Sawyer of Kenyon college, on Honolulu and his witnessing of the bombing of Pearl Harbor; vocal duet, Mrs. Maxwell and Jane Wiggins; talk by A. J. Swigart, worthy patron.

The annual birthday party of the West Side club was held yesterday at the home of Mrs. Lloyd Wagner, with Mrs. Harold Levering assistant hostess. Luncheon was served at 1 o'clock to 20 members. Favors were corsages of sweet peas.

Following the business meeting a program, planned by Mrs. M. T. Beck, was given. Mrs. Beck read an original story, written in verse, of the club from its beginning in 1912. Mrs. L. B. Wagner modeled a costume worn by one of the members at that time.

Letters were read from Mrs. Emma Agnew of San Diego, Calif.; Mrs. Lena Norrick, of Oklahoma City, Okla., and Mrs. Stella Stevens of St. Petersburg, Fla., who were former members. Old group pictures of the club and old programs were displayed. The program closed with a contest arranged by Mrs. Beck. It was a play involving the names of present members. Three charter members, Mrs. Amanda Dill, Mrs. L. B. Wagner, and Mrs. Beck, were present.

Sport Podge

by REX HESS

John Lockstead of Marion, Ohio, is coming to town to do a bit of bowling tomorrow night and Sunday in the Inter-City tournament at the Colony lanes.

Now ordinarily this would not be an item to stir the citizenry to a fever heat of interest, and particularly the kegling fraternity. And I would not blame the kegling fraternity if, on this occasion, they ask: "Who is this John Lockstead of whom you speak?"

And having brought up the subject, I would be a dope if I did not have the answer to this simple question. Maybe I would be a dope anyhow, but not in this instance.

"John Lockstead," I would tell the fraternity, "is the captain of a booster team, the City Ice and Fuel Co."

"So what!" I can hear the fraternity thundering as it turns away in disgust.

"Just this," I retort, "this John Lockstead is a much better bowler than he was a year ago when he took a booster team, the Cavalier Coals, to the tournament at Lorain. You see, he has a 168 average now, and he had only a 155 mark when he went to Lorain."

"This is most remarkable," the fraternity will say sarcastically, "we are glad to see he is getting along so well."

You can see for yourself I am getting nowhere at all in this argument with the bowling fraternity. But, then, who ever did?

So we'll just have to drag out the Inter-City schedule and record book, and find out what John Lockstead did a year ago at Lorain, with his 155 average.

John just won the singles championship with 727 pins, and rolled the highest game in the Lorain tournament with 285.

And that is not all. John's 727 set an all-time record for the singles event in the Inter-City, which began rolling way back in 1911.

What do you think of John Lockstead now?

John's booster team is scheduled for action tomorrow night at 7 o'clock starting on alley No. 12. He comes back for his doubles and singles Sunday morning at 11 o'clock.

He will not be the only champion appearing in the tourney this week-end. The Elyria Bowling Center, team champion of the 1942 tournament, is scheduled at 9 o'clock tomorrow night on No. 2 alley.

This year, by their own admission, they haven't been going so hot. Highest match for the season has been 3008, they finished third in their league for the first half, and they're way down in the standings now.

The Elyria team has lost only one member of its championship lineup, George Knipper. Replacing him is Al Wachsberger, owner of the Elyria alleys.

Returning on the championship quintet are George Bohn, captain, Earl Cotton, Harold Bacon and Thomas Ball.

Bowling with them in doubles will be their sixth man of a year ago, Ted Carpenter.

Hergatt Lettering, Mansfield's only representative in the Ohio state women's bowling tournament this year, will go to Canton Sunday for the jousting.

Making the trip will be Ann Hergatt, Gerry Merryman, Hazel Altman, Mary Dintaman, and Florence Handwark.

Bittner Funeral Home keglers of Elyria should have no transportation difficulties on their trip to the Inter-City this week-end. C. Card is their captain.

RICE GOES AFTER HIS 64TH STRAIGHT WIN

CLEVELAND—(AP)—Little Greg Rice, the former Notre Dame track star, will be after his 64th straight victory tonight when he competes in the Columbian two-mile, the feature event of the third annual Knights of Columbus carnival at the arena.

The holder of four world indoor records, Rice has won the last nine national championships in which he has competed.

NAMES HURLERS

EVANSVILLE, Ind.—(AP)—Manager Steve O'Neill of the Detroit Tigers has named Virgue (Fire) Trucks and Paul (Dizzy) Trout to pitch against the White Sox in tomorrow's exhibition.

2 Tourney Quintets Unbeaten

Martins Ferry, Middle Point Claim Honor.

By FRITZ HOWELL

COLUMBUS—(AP)—The most colorful classic Ohio's high schools have to offer—the state class A and class B championships—are due for decision Saturday.

With the four class B teams the lone survivors of 902 starters, and the class A quartet all that's left of 252 quintets, the talent-laden entrants are expected to put on a wide open free-for-all for the two crowns.

The class A section will stage its games at Columbus auditorium, with a seating capacity of 4,500, with the "B" contingent playing at Ohio State university's gymnasium where 2,500 may sit. Tickets go on sale at 10 a. m. Saturday, on a first come-first served basis.

Two undefeated teams—class B Middle Point with 26 in a row, and class A Martins Ferry with 24—are in the field, but those wins were chalked up against squads in their own districts. Just what they'll do when paired against the best from other areas remains to be seen.

The class A schedule calls for Lima Central (17-5) to meet Canton McKinley (22-2) at 1 p. m., with the unbeaten Martins Ferry and Newark (24-2) clashing at 2 p. m. The winners tangle at 8 p. m. for the crown won a year ago by Xenia Central.

In class B, Waynesburg (24-2) meets Tipp City (17-3) at 1 u. m., and Middle Point engages Yorkville (30-6) at 2 p. m., with the victors fighting it out at 8 p. m.

None of the class B teams has ever won the state crown, although all but Middle Point were in last year's finals. The unbeaten club is making its first start in the classic.

Newark and Martins Ferry, semi-final foes, have won the class A crown three of the last seven years, Newark in 1936 and 1938, and the Ferrians in 1941. Canton McKinley has been in the state meet 10 times, reaching the finals on three occasions, but has always wound up on the losing side. Lima Central is making its fourth trip, the others having proved futile.

Only once in the long history of the tournament has the same district won both championships, Akron North in class A and North Canton in class B turning the trick for the northeast in 1939. Martins Ferry and Yorkville, within four miles of each other along the Ohio river, can turn the trick this year—and there are plenty of fans who think those classy clubs will do it.

* * *

Here are a few of the tournament records the boys will be firing at:

Team scoring: class A, 56; class B, 58.

Individual game scoring: class A, 27; class B, 33.

Low team scoring: class A, 9, class B 3

Lou Impressed By Reynolds

Hank Edwards Picked For Purdue Relays.

LAFAYETTE, Ind. (AP)—"He's about as smart a rookie pitcher as you'll ever see."

The commentator: Lou Boudreau, manager of the Cleveland Indians. The rookie: Allie Reynolds, who won 18 and lost seven hurling for Wilkes-Barre last year.

Boudreau made his remark yesterday as he stood behind the batting cage while Reynolds took his turn at pitching to the hitters in a three-hour batting practice.

"He's going to be a helluva pitcher," the Tribe pilot elaborated. "He knows what it's all about."

The quarter-breed Creek Indian from Oklahoma was by far the fastest of the hurlers who showed their stuff yesterday.

Reynolds also had speed afoot. He and Outfielder Hank Edwards were chosen to compete in the special big leaguers 60-yard dash at the Purdue university relays tomorrow night. They ran virtually a dead heat yesterday in a runoff of preliminaries held a couple of days ago. Reynolds and Edwards will match strides with representatives of the Chicago Cubs, the Pittsburgh Pirates and the Cincinnati Reds.

For the first time since they opened their training camp, the Indians did all their work outdoors yesterday. Another intra-squad game was arranged for today.

Sunday the Indians tangle with the semi-pro Lafayette Red Sox in an exhibition game.

INFIELDERS SWITCHED

WALLINGFORD, Conn. (AP)—Casey Stengel endeavored to solve the Boston Braves' infield problems by shifting Joe Burns into the third base squad behind Tony Cuccinello and shifting Ben Garaphy to shortstop.

CATCHER CLOUTS

CAIRO, Ill. - (AP) The latest dose of poison for the St. Louis Cardinals opponents is the news of another great hitting catcher in the Cards' camp. He is Gerry Burmeister, who drove in four runs in yesterday's intra-squad tussle.

Indians' Strategy Board Rates High

The Cleveland Indians may not win the pennant this year, but their board of strategy is well-heeled with managerial brains. Assisting Manager Lou Boudreau, the scintillating shortstop, are two ex-big league managers, Del Baker, former pilot of the Detroit Tigers, and Burt Shotton, who managed the Phils for five years. Left to right at Lafayette, Ind., are George Susce, a coach-catcher; Shotton, Baker and Boudreau. Cleveland's young manager says Indians are team to beat.

Safety Cabs Win Shutout

Margaret Baker Rolls High A-League Total.

Safety Cabs scored a shutout victory and boosted their lead in the women's Commercial "A" bowling league to three games at Colony alleys last night.

Margaret Baker took top total with 558 on a string of 203-146-209, while Arlene Peters turned in high game with 211.

The Cabs took team honors with a 2480 total, but Little Novelty Shoppe had high game of 874.

Helen Wills' Hand Injured

May Never Be Able To Play Tennis Again.

MANHATTAN, Kans. — (INS) — Helen Wills, degarded by many as the greatest woman tennis player in history, looked forward today to the grim possibility she never may be able to play her favorite game again.

She was severely bitten last Jan 14 when she stepped in and tried to stop a vicious fight between her German police dog and another dog that had pounced on him. Both animals turned on her and one of them bit her right hand.

The injury was treated and it was believed there would be no serious results. An infection developed later, however, and an operation was performed last week which required the removal of several bones of the hand.

Today the hand was bandaged and in a sling and Miss Wills, now the wife of Lieut. Aiden Roark, stationed at Fort Riley, Kas., said it probably would remain this way for another two months.

She added sadly her physician had told her he did not know if she ever would recover full use of her hand.

SPORTS ROUNDUP

NEW YORK —(AP)— The hotel where the Yankees are staying during spring training at Asbury Park, N. J., is constructed largely of material salvaged from the New York World's Fair . . . The club is being constructed mainly of material salvaged from the Cleveland Indians . . . Needless to say, neither is a finished product yet . . . And, incidentally, another deal to buy the Yankees is supposed to be cooking with an entirely new bunch of names listed as prospective purchasers.

Don Donaghey, Philadelphia Evening Bulletin: "For many springs Wilmington fans have stood on their railroad station platform and envied the Pullman porters on the streamliners as they whizzed into the deep south laden with big league ball clubs . . . Now that they have the A's in their laps, they're due to discover that speed and distance lend enchantment to a tail-ender in March."

Cruickshank Cops Title

Takes $450 In War Bonds At Pinehurst.

PINEHURST, N. C.—(UP)—Veteran Bobby Cruickshank, Richmond, Va., professional, had an extra bit of luggage—$450 in war bonds—to add to his golfing duffle today after succeeding to the North-South open golf championship.

Cruikshank, 48-year-old Scottish-born links expert, rallied under pressure yesterday to come from one stroke behind and win the crown vacated by Ben Hogan, Hershey, Pa., pro, with a 72-hole total of 292, four over par.

Joe Kirkwood, veteran trick-shotmaker from Philadelphia finished a stroke behind with 293 to win $350.

Hogan, Lawson Little and several other big-name players were unable to compete because of military service or war work while several other former contenders were restricted by a new age requirement holding civilian entries to players 38 or over.

Cards ranged from 295 to 315 for the remainder of the field, with Joe Tunesia of Rockville Center, N. Y., winning the third place prize of $250 with 295.

BRUINS NEED ONE MORE PLAY-OFF WIN

(By International News Service)

Only one more victory was needed today by the Boston Bruins to eliminate Montreal from the Stanley Cup playoffs. Boston beat the Canadiens 3-2 in an overtime game at Montreal last night to win the third successive game in their best of seven games series.

In Toronto, the Detroit Red Wings regained the lead in the playoff series with the Maple Leafs by scoring a 4-2 victory. Detroit now has a 2-1 edge over the Leafs.

SIGNS WITH HENS

FRESNO, Calif. —(AP)— Pitcher Earl Jones, 1942 strikeout king of the Canadian-American league, came to terms with Toledo of the American Association and said he would leave next week for the Mudhen camp at Athens, O. A southpaw, Jones is the property of the St. Louis Browns. He hurled for Gloversville, N. Y., last season.

Redlegs Prepare For Squad Game

BLOOMINGTON, Ind. — (AP) — The Cincinnati Reds are gearing themselves for their first intra-squad games Saturday and Sunday, with the Indiana U. student body and a contingent of WAVES in the bleachers.

Looking beyond those engagements, it seems that unless something happens to him, Johnny Vander Meer will pitch the opening day game against the St. Louis Cardinals April 21. With Bucky Walters still laid up with his hurdler's ankle, Ray Star likely will afford the only competition for the honor.

Johnny is throwing hard with an easy movement and such competent judges of pitching as Frank McCormick say he's got everything this year.

MOST VALUABLE

GRANVILLE — (AP) — Denison university's basketball squad elected Robert McGinnis, Marion freshman, and John Gwinn, Gallipolis junior, the team's most valuable players last season at the annual cage banquet last night. McGinnis, a forward, scored 182 points and Gwinn, a guard, 69 points, both playing in all of Denison's 15 games.

Phillies Still Look Futile

Old Chuck Klein To Try Diamond Comeback.

NEW YORK—(U.P.)—If the Philadelphia Phillies go into the 1943 National league pennant race with what they have now they are likely to go down in history as the weakest major league club of modern times.

Manager Bucky Harris, making his debut in the senior circuit after a long career in the American league needs players of all kinds — preferably with some major league ability.

Some baseball men feel the Phillies will be lucky to win 40 games if they have to get along with what they've got.

Harris has five outfielders, four infielders, one catcher and 10 pitchers on his roster, five short of the major league player limit and one of the infielders—Edward J. Murphy, a rookie — probably won't be around much longer because of the draft.

Of those 19, 10 were with the team last year, one of them, Chuck Klein, as coach.

This year Klein is listed as one of the outfield candidates, but he no longer is up to full-time service and probably will be used only occasionally.

The outfield will be built around Dan Litwhiler, one of the better left fielders in the league. Earl Naylor, who also did some pitching last year, Klein, Ron Northey, who was with the club last season, and Paul Busby, back after a year's retirement, are the other garden candidates.

When Murphy goes, there will be only three infielders — Babe Dahlgren at first, Danny Murtaugh at second or short and Merrill May at third.

There is only one catcher on the squad—Thompson Livingston.

Johnny Podgajny, who won six while losing 14 last season; Walter Geck and Si Johnson are the only holdover pitchers. Other veterans include Johnny Allen, secured from the Brooklyn Dodgers, who has been a stubborn holdout, and Schoolboy Rowe, bought from Montreal in a side deal to the Bobby Bragan-Jack Kraus trade.

Connie Moans Over Hurlers

Mound Weakness Makes Athletics Cellar Bet.

WILMINGTON, Del. — (AP) — White-haired Connie Mack, gazing benignly at his Philadelphia Athletics in training here, says the biggest problem he has this year is pitching.

The total hurling staff listed on the club's roster is seven men, so even if they were all good men and true, this shortage of throwers would menace the team's chances.

"We only have three pitchers left from last year," 80-year-old Connie explained. "Phil Marchildon, who won 17 games for us, is in the Canadian army and Fowler and Besse are also gone.

"It's too early to tell yet how the staff will shape up this season. I just can't say what we are going to do."

The three pitchers who have returned from last year's squad are Roger Wolff, Russ Christopher and Luman Harris, who jointly accounted for 27 victories in 1942. However, Wolff is a childless married man who may be called for the draft at any time. Except for Jesse Flores, a 14-game winner at Los Angeles, the rest of the A's staff is made up of recruits from Class B leagues.

Connie is confronted by a porous infield. Dick Siebert on first base is a standby, of course, and Pete Suder at second base at least is experienced. But right now, Irvin Hall, a rookie from Williamsport in the Eastern league, is the shortstop and another freshman, Eddie Mayo, from Los Angeles, is the regular third baseman.

BILLIE VAUGHAN SPLITS EVEN IN TWO MATCHES

Marceline (Billie) Vaughan, 22-year-old cue artist, gave a neat exhibition of greencloth wizardry last night at Andregg's Billiards before a packed house, but only split even in matches with two Mansfield pool shooters.

She won the opening match from Charles Brown 50-43 after trailing 7-21 on the second rack, and then, after an exhibition of trick shots, took on Lyman Norton and lost by 12 points.

THEFTS PLOTTED

COLLEGE PARK, Md. —(AP)— The Washington Senators look to grand larceny for extra runs this season. As example of the team's possibilities, Coach Clyde Milan pointed to Outfielder George Case, who has led the American league in base-stealing for four seasons, George Myatt, who led the American Association with 39 steals for Columbus last season, and Ellis Clary, base-stealing champ of the Southern Association before he joined the Nats.

HAS STUFF

FRENCH LICK, Ind.—(AP)— Eddie Hanyzewski, who has been training at Notre Dame since Christmas, is making Manager Jimmy Wilson of the Chicago Cubs beam as he tossed a variety of stuff across the plate. A year ago Eddie was a Cub sensation, but at 21 he weighed well over 200 pounds. Now he's down to 187.

From the Minors

VIC BRADFORD, new Giant outfielder, is the same Vic Bradford who starred for the University of Alabama football team a few years back. A star baseball player at Alabama, Bradford was one of the heavier hitters in the minors last year, batting .342 for Jacksonville in the South Atlantic league. A right-handed batsman, Bradford also is a power hitter. He is expected to win a regular outfield berth.

Georgetown Hoyas Cop Cage Crown

NEW YORK —(U.P.)— The fighting Hoyas of Georgetown university held the Eastern NCAA Basketball championship today as result of an upset triumph over DePaul of Chicago and looked forward to meeting the western champion for the national collegiate crown.

The Washingtonians came from behind with a last-half rally before 14,085 persons at Madison Square Garden last night and fought off the Chicago district champions for a 53 to 49 triumph.

Dartmouth earlier engaged consolation honors by turning back New York university, 51 to 49.

The western championships open in Kansas City tomorrow night among Texas, Washington, Oklahoma, and Wyoming. The finals will be played Saturday night with the champion meeting Georgetown for the national crown in Madison Square Garden next Tuesday night.

Buckeyes Make Bid For Title

Tank Hopes Rest on Pair of Hawaiians.

By GRANT DILLMAN

COLUMBUS—(U.P.)—The nation's top swimmers and divers from 21 colleges today began time trials in the two-day annual National Collegiate Athletic association championships which Ohio State university was a heavy favorite to win.

Buckeye hopes rested on two Hawaiians, Keo Nakama, holder of the world's mile record, and Bill Smith, who holds the national 220, 440 and 880-yard freestyle events.

A new champion was certain to be crowned. Yale, last year's NCAA champion, was not entered this year because of travel restrictions.

Ohio State pointed for a second leg on a "grand slam" of the nation's major swimming championship meets—the Western conference title, which they won earlier at Chicago, the NCAA, and the American Athletic Union meet at New York April 2-3.

The Buckeyes were expected to have little trouble sweeping the diving events. Frank Dempsey, Charles Batterman and Jimmy Strong, the same combination which finished one-two-three in the Big Ten meet, were favored to take most of the diving points for Ohio State.

Michigan, only school ever to win the three major meets in one year, loomed as the lone stumbling block to Buckeye hopes.

The Wolverines have a formidable roster of sprinters, including John Patten, Michigan captain; Harold Fries and Ace Cory. Michigan also will be represented by Harry Holiday, Big Ten backstroke champion, and Jim Skinner, crack breaststroker.

Michigan's margin of superiority in the sprints was tempered somewhat by the entry of Ed Hall, of Massachusetts State, national collegiate titlist in the 100-yard freestyle, and Peter Powilson, of the University of Washington, northwestern freestyle sprint champion.

Formidable opposition was expected also from Northwestern's Henry Kozlowski in the 100-yard freestyle while Stanford's Emmett Cashin, Pacific coast breaststroke title-holder, was rated a favorite in his event.

A total of 91 swimmers and divers were entered in this year's NCAA meet, the first held at Ohio State since 1934.

Robert Bennett, member of Yale's world's record-holding relay team and now in the navy, was the only member of the armed services entered. He was entered by Lake Forest and rated high among the sprinters.

Greco, Shans Meet In Return Fight

Greco defeated Shans in their first meeting last month but the match was so close a crowd of 16,000 is expected to ignore odds of 11-5 favoring the Canadian and build up a gate of $55,000 for the bout that may push Jimmy to the top of the pugilistic pile and knock Shans right out of the punch picture.

In their last meeting, Johnny held a 4¼ pound edge on his rival at 135½.

Shans, according to the assurances of his entourage, now has built himself up to about 133 while Greco has pared down to around 134.

BUILD OWN ENGINES

JOHNSTOWN, Pa. —(U.P.)— Fire engines are scarce in wartime, so Johnstown firemen are building their own equipment. Work is progressing on four pumping units, mounts for which are constructed from old autos and parts gathered from auto and junk dealers. There is no shiny nickel and red paint, "but they throw water and do the job and that's all we're concerned with," said Councilman Fred S. Brosious.

SLIGHT GAINS DISTRIBUTED IN STOCK LIST

Spring Weather Helps Retail Sales, But Volume Drops Below Year Ago.

(By Associated Press)

NEW YORK — Gains of fractions to a point or so were widely distributed in today's early stock market transactions.

On the upside in blocks running to 15,000 shares at the opening were Chrysler, Youngstown Sheet, J. I. Case, Standard Oil (NJ) Pennsylvania, General Motors, General Electric, American Smelting and U. S Steel.

Those watching merchandising issues noted the Dun & Bradstreet survey which found that spring-like weather helped retail sales this week but, for the country as a whole, volume was slightly under a year ago when Easter purchasing neared its climax. The year-to-year decline on a nation-wide basis was placed at 1 to 3 per cent.

Woman Disables Colored Mugger And Calls Police

NEW YORK —(INS)— Muggers beware—a woman commando is on the loose!

Twenty-seven-year-old, slight and bespectacled Mrs. Dorothy Meyer was coming home from work in dimmed-out downtown New York at 1:30 a. m. yesterday when she was confronted by a hefty Negro who attempted to put his arm around her neck in true "mugging" fashion. She promptly disabled him, ran to a nearby phone and notified police and within 12 hours, Albert A. Smith was arrested and indicted.

Mrs. Meyer, it must be explained, is the wife of Corporal William Meyer, now on active service in Africa with the U. S. army engineers.

"I gave him the knee treatment," related Commando Mrs Meyer when telling police how she bested her assailant. "My husband taught me the tactics used by the commandos and told me to practice them so I'd be able to take care of myself in case of trouble."

Police agree she was an apt pupil.

New War-Time Food Czar

Control of the United States food production and supply has been placed by President Roosevelt in the hands of Chester C. Davis, above, former chief of the AAA and now president of the Federal Reserve bank at St. Louis. The chief executive's order said that Davis would administrate all food production and distribution, including recruiting of farm labor.

FRANCE VICTIM IN NAZI DEAL

Germans Assume Rumanian Debt To Get More Men, Provisions.

(By United Press)

STOCKHOLM—The Nazis have persuaded the satellite Rumanian government to furnish more men and provisions by a deal which victimizes occupied France, informed sources said today.

These sources said that Premier Ion Antonescu balked at a new agreement with Germany mainly because he had extended heavy credits to the Nazis and had little indication the bills would ever be paid.

The Nazis overcame his opposition, it was understood, by assuming the Rumanian debt to France, reportedly 38,000,000,000 lei, and deducting that sum from the German debt to Rumania. It was pointed out the Nazis could pay off France with occupation marks set at artificial rates.

As a result, Rumania was said to have promised deliveries of oil and farm products and press her persecution of Jews and anti-Nazi elements.

Antonescu, it was said, had promised to meet a German demand for 500,000 troops but it was doubtful he could make good.

In another deal with the Nazis, Antonescu was reported to have agreed to speed up deportation of Jews and stamp out oppositionist elements providing Germany would turn over fugitive Rumanian Iron guardists who were in Germany.

Germany reportedly assented but later sent a note informing Rumania that the Iron guardists who had acquired German citizenship were not included.

Iron guardist leader Horia Sima, who originally fled to Germany, was reported to be "detained" in Italy.

ENDORSE SIX FOR STATE POST

Richland Sportsmen's Groups Support Bromfield, 5 Others For Ohio Commission.

The Richland Council of Conservation and Sportsmen's organizations today asked Gov. John W. Bricker to name any one of six Mansfield area sportsmen and conservationists to the Ohio Conservation commission.

Endorsed for the post by the county sportsmen's unit were Author-Farmer Louis Bromfield, who has been mentioned as the probable appointee; A. A. Miller, C. Wayne Stutz, and Fred K. Frankeberger, all of Mansfield; Theodore L. Lutz of Shelby, and Jack Boyd, sr., of Galion.

The governor is expected to name a Democratic member of the state commission within a few days. Not all of the six men endorsed by the county council of conservation are Democrats, however, since the sportsmen's organizations function on a non-partisan basis.

The county council, representing a number of outdoor and conservationist groups, also recommended that sportsmen volunteer their services to civilian defense authorities in guarding against fires and the protection of property against sabotage.

"We urge that all sportsmen's organizations affiliated with this council volunteer their services to the local office of civilian defense in response to the recent appeal for assistance in fire control," the resolution said.

The volunter work would include the defense of forests, wood lots, farms, coal mines, coal yards, railroad property, and other resources, said Gordon H. Ensminger, secretary of the council.

MANSFIELD NEWS

Girl Bitten By Dog—Mrs. E. C. Sziraki, Fairfax avenue, near West Fourth street, reported to sheriff's officers today that her daughter had been bitten by a dog.

Kalbfleisch To Speak—Common Pleas Judge G. E. Kalbfleisch will speak tomorrow at the monthly luncheon meeting of the Richland County Bar association in the Mansfield-Leland hotel.

Clothing Missing — William Brennan, 57 South Walnut street, told police today that a suit, overcoat, hat, ties and other articles of clothing, all valued at $45, had been stolen from his room.

Stamp, Book Gone—Ray Metz, 514 Clifton boulevard, reported to Desk Sergeant Claude Watts today that a federal use tax stamp and a gasoline A book were taken from his car, parked on South Diamond street, last night.

Truck Loses Tire—Willis Tryon, 559 Wayne street, turned over to Patrolmen Don Mitchell and John Steel a new truck tire which his little daughter saw fall from the cargo bed of a passing truck late yesterday.

Fined For Striking Sister—Mrs. Margaretha Wade, Sixth avenue, was fined $10 and costs in municipal court this morning for assault and battery on her sister, Elizabeth Sowash, who signed the complaint. Jurge Herbert Schettler later suspended the fine.

Shoot Scheduled — Mansfield Muzzle-Loader Rifle club will shoot Saturday at the club grounds three miles west of Mansfield on U. S. Route 30-S., Secretary-Treasurer Paul Houserman has announced. The shoot will start at 1 p. m.

Injures Hand — Harvey Blank, 299 Wayne street, employe of the Hartman Electric company, received cuts on his left hand yesterday when his hand was pinched under a punch press at the plant. He was treated at General hospital and returned home.

Firemen on Transfer—Captain Lee Harley today was directing his No. 3 engine house crew at Central station pending repairs to the station's principal fire-fighting rig. The fire truck's ignition system failed to operate last night and all calls from the south end zone will be handled from Central station until repairs are made.

Engineers Meet — Clarence F. Wolf, president of the Mansfield chapter, presided at last night's meeting in the Mansfield-Leland hotel of the north central division of the Ohio Society of Professional Engineers. Miss Miriam Hooper and Miss Esther Barnett of the Red Cross spoke. A film on electric welding was shown.

Hear OPA Speaker — Richland County grocers and representatives of the local war price and ration board heard Daniel C. Mulligan, district food specialist of the Office of Price Administration, detail the new simplified food price regulations now being issued at a meeting in the Chamber of Commerce assembly room last night.

bill the Ruml plan, which would forgive one year's liability.

Martin said:

"We are gaining votes steadily and it is my opinion that the house will substitute the Carlson bill, which embraces the Ruml plan, for the measure sponsored by the administration."

It marked the first time that the GOP leader had predicted victory since the Republicans decided to throw their support behind the widely-publicized pay-as-you-go proposal conceived by Beardsley Ruml, New York businessman.

Martin's statement immediately drew a reply from Chairman Dougherty (D.) N. C., of the ways and means committee, who is sponsoring the administration's "incentive" discount bill now under consideration. Doughton said:

"We've got the proponents of this Ruml tax heresy on the run and by the time a showdown is reached next week we'll have the votes to lick it. This Ruml plan can not stand the light of day and any sound thinker knows it. We are going to take it apart piece by piece and they'll never get it back together again."

EIGHTH ARMY ADVANCING IN REAR OF AXIS

Rommel Hurls Tanks at Gap In Mareth Line; Yanks Gain In Two Sectors.

ery, commander of the British Eighth army, and Lieut. Gen. George S. Patton, jr., commander of U. S. ground troops, were directing operations personally on their respective fronts and both forces were eager for the junction which would mean the end of Rommel's army.

One American column, heading across central Tunisia to cut off the Axis forces, was reported in control of the last mountain barrier guarding the coastal road which is Rommel's only avenue of escape into northern Tunisia. These troops, advancing on both sides of the road from Maknassy to Mezzouna, were reported within a few miles of Mezzouna.

In the south the Germans, after closing a breach punched in the Mareth line by the Eighth army, were reported heavily engaged in an artillery duel. Great forces of enemy tanks and infantry were thrown into battle Monday to close the break forced by the Eighth army. Tuesday, after bitter fighting, the veteran British troops were forced to fall back for the first time in their long march across Africa.

(The Morocco radio said today that "bloody engagements and hand-to-hand fighting" were in progress at several places along the Mareth line. The Algiers radio said American troops had reached a point seven miles east of Maknassy.

(The Eighth army, it was revealed in a Reuters dispatch last night, went into battle against the Mareth line with the promise of Gen. Montgomery that "we will not stop or let up until Tunis has been captured and the enemy either has given up the struggle or been pushed into the sea."

(Both the Vichy and Berlin radios last night acknowledged withdrawals by the Axis in Tunisia, but the area or areas involved were not specified.)

In addition to the American forces operating in the Mezzouna area, another American column has driven 10 miles beyond El Guetar on a road running southeastward toward Gabes from Gafsa.

Unsettled weather threatened to curtail the scope of an Allied air offensive which for a week has blasted Axis forces on a round-the-clock schedule.

Expect Crisis In Laval Government

MADRID —(AP)— The Spanish press said today that a crisis in the government of Pierre Laval was considered imminent in Vichy political circles and dispatches indicated the resignation of 14 members of the Vichy diplomatic and consular services in Spain had contributed to the growing tension.

Most of the outgoing diplomats have cast their lot with Gen. Henri Giraud, French high commissioner in North Africa.

Dispatches from Vichy said news of the Madrid resignations arrived shortly after the jailing in France of Col. Francois de la Rocque, former chief of the French Social party, Croix de Feu.

The ranks of dissident Frenchmen were said to have been increased by thousands with the arrest of La Rocque.

YANKS TAKEN INTO GERMANY

Bern Says British Men Also Are Removed from France.

BERN, Switzerland —(AP)— British and American men who had remained in the former Vichy-controlled part of France after the total occupation of German troops were reported today to have been taken to Germany.

The United States legation here said it had no confirmation of the report but said it had been notified all British and American citizens in the area—men, women and children numbering some 3,600—had been arrested.

According to the report British and American men had been taken to Germany, the Germans explained the measure was necessary to remove alleged trouble-making elements from France in event of military operations

COLUMBUS —(INS)— Searching parties still are combing the rocky and desert territory between Portland, Ore., and Las Vegas, Nev., for a Louckbourne air base bomber which has been missing 23 days, Public Relations officers at the field asserted today.

The bomber with a crew of nine took off from Lockbourne March 3 on a "routine cross-country flight."

ANNAPOLIS, Md.—(U P)—British Foreign Secretary Anthony Eden is expected to give the official British viewpoint on war issues and post-war planning here tonight in the only formal address of his American tour.

He will speak before a joint session of the Maryland legislature. The speech will be broadcast from 9 to 9:30 p. m., EWT., by the Columbia Broadcasting System.

HAIL NAMING OF FOOD BOSS

Congress, Farm Leaders Loud In Acclaim of Davis as New Agency Head.

clear, however, on the scope of Davis' powers, anticipating that a subsequent executive order from Mr. Roosevelt would provide the answer, particularly on the price question and his relationship with Secretary of Agriculture Wickard, who formerly served as food administrator.

The White House announcement merely stated that "an administration of food production and distribution" under Davis' direction had been created "in the department of agriculture."

Some sources believed it likely that Wickard, shorn of his authority over the critical wartime food program, would resign from the cabinet post, although agriculture department spokesmen insisted that he had full knowledge of the Davis appointment and had conferred with the president about it.

Wickard himself wired Davis that "I am glad to join forces with you in our vital wartime task."

"The president has made an excellent choice in selecting you for your new assignment," Wickard said. "I know that you have the confidence of the public."

One farm organization spokesman said, however, that the action left Wickard as "secretary emeritus," while another high farm leader declared that the secretary now would retain authority only over "old routine matters of the department," such as research and forestry

Another much-debated issue was whether the president could now transfer food price control from Price Administrator Prentiss M. Brown to Davis. A high OPA official said that the Davis appointment "doesn't affect our operations at all," insisting that OPA was created by congress.

A prominent farm organization official recalled, however, that the price control enactment of congress provided that OPA should fix farm commodity ceilings in consultation with the secretary of agriculture. At the time, newsmen observed to President Roosevelt that conflicts might result between Wickard and the then OPA chief, Leon Henderson, but Mr. Roosevelt deprecated such possibilities and remarked that he could fire them both, if need be.

Farm leaders generally have been demanding higher farm prices as necessary to obtain all-out food production OPA Administrator Brown only yesterday, however, asked congress to reject legislation accomplishing this aim as threatening the anti-inflation program. This has been the administration's attitude all along.

Many congressmen, including Sen Smith (D., S.C.) chairman of the senate agriculture committee, and Rep Fulmer, (D.,S.C.) chairman of the house agriculture committee, welcomed the appointment of Davis, former AAA chief. Congressional quarters have been critical of Wickard, charging him with moving too slowly and being unable to get action.

Davis will make a good man," Fulmer said. "We need a man who will look after agriculture like the war department looks after the army. There have been a lot of complaints at Wickard hasn't demanded things that he should have. He has let them run over him. He hasn't stood up and demanded a square deal for agriculture."

Smith asserted that "every man I've talked to in the senate is enthusiastic about the Davis appointment."

More ground will be required for Empire Sheet and Tin plate company employes, Chairman John H. Kullman of the Victory garden committee was advised.

Others which have indicated they will cooperate with this garden program are the Dominion Electrical Manufacturing company, the Ohio Brass company, the Humphryes Manufacturing company, the Great Lakes Steel company and the Kiwanis club.

Additional industries are expected to present their plans at a meeting to be held next week. At yesterday's session a plan for increasing family and plant interest through publicity was discussed.

Meanwhile C. W. Handley, manager of the U. S. employment center here, today announced a possible easement for Richland county's farm labor situation His office was advised that a number of year-around farm hands have completed special training at Ohio State university and are available for farmers who can provide adequate housing facilities for the men and their families

Handley urges farm owners to make immediate application for such labor and to list with the employment center their housing accommodations

LOSS $1,000

Blaze Sweeps Lumber Yard on South Diamond Road.

Handicapped by an inadequate water supply, Central station firemen yesterday evening were unable to save a huge quantity of green walnut and cherry lumber when flames destroyed a drying kiln at the John Constance cabinet making shop and lumber yard on South Diamond street road.

The only water service available at the scene, which is nearly a mile from the city limits, was from a fire cistern on the premises, according to Fire Chief Charles J. Seeburger. Constance said the loss would exceed $1,000.

An increased fuel gas supply serving a heater in the seasoning shed permitted the flames to reach the stored lumber, acting Captain H. J. Hasenzahl said.

Two years ago firemen succeeded in saving a large stock of lumber, when a night fire threatened to sweep the plant.

Ann Sheridan Offers Expert Advice on Sweater Problem

and told them not to come back until they were clad more modestly. He said they weren't doing the male workers any good. The Bridgeport sweater girls appealed to the United Automobile Workers. The union chieftains took one squint at the question and shot it down to Washington. The labor department's conciliation service, apparently, could pass the buck to nobody but Miss Sheridan. (Just like a man, said she, sotto voce)

"If they want me," she continued (on the record), "I will be very happy to do everything I can to resolve this problem. It is time women stop having the wool pulled over their eyes."

Miss Sheridan meant by this that no man has any right to tell a woman how to dress. She also meant that there are big sweaters and little girls, a combination that causes accidents; and little sweaters and big girls, which makes men whistle Either is bad.

As one of the reigning sweater girls, the red-headed Miss Sheridan knows all about the entire sweater situation.

She said that she had to start work in another week in a movie called "The Animal Kingdom"—in which she wears a succession of sweaters—but that thereafter she would be free to make a tour of war plants, lecturing on clothes and even demonstrating them.

"I have been through many war plants," she continued, "and I must say I have seen some terrifying costumes I mean things dangling. Like loose sleeves and aprons strings."

Miss Sheridan who never wears a sweater except when the Warner Brothers cameramen insist (they're always insisting), said she hoped the labor department wasn't spoofing her. She said she wasn't spoofing the labor department.

TWO JAP BASES HIT BY BOMBERS

Enemy Cargo Ships Pounded; Powerful New Blows Waited in Pacific.

a reconnaissance trip over Dyke Ackland bay, below Buna.

Lull Seen as Prelude To Heavy Yank Blows

WASHINGTON—(AP)—The current lull in Pacific fighting, broken only by air attacks against Japanese outposts in the Solomon and Aleutian islands, was regarded in informed quarters today as indicating American commanders had been strengthening and disposing their forces for powerful new blows against the enemy.

The objectives of these offensives qualified informants predicted, will be both to win new strategic positions for United States forces and further to reduce Japan's waning sea power before the enemy has an opportunity to recover from past losses.

Every day that passes without significant action, it was emphasized, gives the enemy more time to repair damaged ships, speed new ones to completion, strengthen the bases and develop the rich conquests of the South Pacific.

Since shipping is known to be one of the enemy's most vulnerable points, an initial move might be designed to compel him to fight under terms favorable to American success. In seeking to maintain their hold on Guadalcanal, the Japanese spent ships and planes desperately even after it became apparent that they eventually would lose the island.

Another island conquest which would cause them similarly serious losses would be a highly profitable enterprise for the United States even though the territory actually won might not be of major strategic importance.

To launch such an enterprise it was believed here that the navy might strike more deeply into the Solomons archipelago by invading either the Munda area immediately beyond Guadalcanal or attacking Bougainville, the big island at the northwestern end of the chain.

Liquor Dealers Warned Price Ceilings Stay

association has planned a pool purchase of $30,000 worth of domestic brands in some neighboring state, likely in Illinois.

Transportation and handling charges, state taxes and mark-ups will add about 30 per cent to the normal wholesale cost of whiskies, Welsh said, but the dealer will be restrained from passing this along to the individual drinker.

Mansfield's two stores are continuing on "short rations" delivered weekly from the state-monopoly warehouses and Don A. Fisher, state liquor director, continues without a program for rationing the limited supplies while an enabling measure still pends in the legislature.

CITY'S MEAT SUPPLY GOING, GOING, GONE

'Sold Out' Signs Appearing as Mansfielders Gobble Up Available Stocks.

However, this represents about one day's supply for the war-boom city and will have to be stretched over a three-day period.

Approximately 200 of the 1,600 greater Cincinnati retail meat stores will be closed for the week-end due to the customers' run on the meat shops and the general meat shortage. Stores which remain open will have to operate on the pork supplies which they can obtain since there is little beef in the city. New York city also faced a meatless week-end as nine out of ten retail butcher shops were completely sold out.

"We'll be glad when rationing comes" said one tired Mansfield meat dealer after the rush of the past two days. All of the local markets have been filled to capacity during the past two days as shoppers rushed to lay in a supply against Monday's rationing.

One dealer stated that he had two large portions of beef which had not been cut but said "those will be all gone by this evening."

One popular downtown cafeteria, the Evergreens, at Third and Walnut streets, in view of meat and food shortages, has announced a curtailment of serving hours. The cafeteria will no longer be open on Sunday, the first time since it was established 20 years ago. The management said it was hoped this arrangement would accommodate all working people who must eat meals in restaurants during the week. Sunday trade is principally made up of persons who could have their meals at home.

A United Press survey over the nation showed that cities from the Atlantic to the Pacific and from the Great Lakes to the Gulf, all are feeling serious meat shortages.

No acute shortages were reported in canned or processed foods and apparently there were ample supplies of fresh vegetables in most cities. Poultry, which will not be rationed, was scarce as housewives bought the available supply as a substitute for beef, pork or veal.

Butchers vied with butchers and housewives fought with housewives in wholesale and retail markets yesterday in many cities to buy the last cuts of unrationed meat.

While the big meat packers believed rationing would relieve the situation, many butchers and restaurant owners warned that dwindling supplies and reduced quotas would so diminish their business that it may force hundreds of closings, thus aggravating the situation still more.

In Washington, hope was held that War Food Administrator Chester C. Davis, appointed by the president yesterday would be able to relieve the situation.

The over-all food picture reported in typical cities of the east, middle west, southwest and west coast follows:

New York: Nine out of ten butcher shops report exhausted supplies. Wholesale meat receipts far below normal. Restaurants apparently well-stocked but predict a 50 per cent reduction in supplies next week. Police called to quell near riot by 2,000 butchers yesterday in the Brooklyn wholesale meat market.

Washington: Housewives push meat sales up 33 per cent with demand greater than supply. City expected to reduce its meat consumption by 40 per cent after Monday.

Chicago: Rush to buy chickens to supplant beef, pork and veal found poultry dealers with no stock on hand. Housewives formed long queues yesterday at shops still having meat. Retailers and wholesalers believing rationing eventually will ease the situation.

St. Louis: Packing houses said the meat shortage was too acute to be relieved by rationing. Some meat arrived yesterday and block-long lines formed, but choice was limited. Horse meat on sale and finding buyers.

struck or kicked several times, Coroner O. R. Kackley said.

The body was claimed yesterday by Mrs. Reed's father and brother who returned it to Cuba, Ill., last night. Funeral services will be conducted there Saturday.

Bevard told Prosecutor Scanlon he turned on the gas in the apartment, intending to take his own life, but changed his mind and left the city.

Officers learned from the father that Mrs. Reed had been divorced four years ago in Illinois and has two small children there with relatives.

Pvt. Bevard and Mrs. Reed had been living as husband and wife for about three weeks before the slaying, authorities said. Bevard came to Camp Millard from Peoria, Ill., where he was inducted last Nov. 14.

He told police today that he and Mrs. Reed were quarreling Sunday night, but he denied that their argument was over her association with another man. Officers were investigating further to learn how the quarrel started.

During questioning today, Bevard first said he and Mrs. Reed were married, but later admitted he has a wife from whom he is not divorced.

Bevard and the slain woman both lived in Canton, Ill., before coming to Bucyrus and they apparently had known each other there, city and county authorities learned.

ter of the violent battles north of Chuguev that fresh German forces were at the battlefront.

In the Kuban valley, the Red army maintained the tempo of its renewed offensive, continuing their advance toward Novorossisk and Kerch strait.

A dispatch to Red Star, the Red army's official newspaper here, said that in one sector of the Smolensk area the advancing Russian troops liberated 12,000 Soviet citizens whom the Germans had herded together for shipment to Germany as laborers.

The dispatch said, too, that having crossed the upper Dnieper river and reached several of the streams west of it, the Russians had entered a new German defense zone of considerable depth with numerous firepoints, and fortifications largely built by forced labor.

Both sides are introducing masses of new artillery and aviation power in the area as the battle mounts, Red Star declared.

Reds Extend Fishing Privileges to Japs

MOSCOW — (AP) — An agreement signed at Kuibyshev Russia has given Japan a one-year extension of fishing privileges which the Japanese have enjoyed in certain Soviet far eastern waters since 1923.

The government newspaper Izvestia, which announced the signing, said the agreement was initialed yesterday by the Soviet vice commissar for foreign affairs, S. A. Lozovsky and Japanese Ambassador Naotake Sato.

The fisheries protocol, originally signed 20 years ago, was renewed in 1928. It expired in 1936 and has not been renewed since then. But the convention is prolonged each year on the basis of the original agreement.

The agreement is of great importance to Japan because her food supply depends greatly on the fish caught in Soviet waters.

In London, observers regarded the extension as an indication of the desire of both Russia and Japan to avoid friction at the moment.

TO LIVE WITH LOVE +++

CHAPTER XXVI

Evelyn did not question the right or wrong of her feelings. The few strong impulses she had had in her life she accepted as leaders and followed — just as when she was hungry she ate and when she was thirsty she drank and when Rand had come to Clinton, she had known that she must see him. Nor did she tell herself that she loved him. She told herself nothing but that she must be alone with him when the music ceased and the speeches began.

She had never told herself that she had been unhappy with Bill. Her marriage she had accepted as a perfectly natural event. She had to marry somebody. The few scenes with Bill as the result of her failure to remember certain little things had upset her pure comfort but little.

Bill's good looks and popularity gave her pleasure and his practical mind she relied upon as heretofore she had always relied upon Charlotte's. That Bill recently had been kind and gentle rather than ardent pleased her, too. Only once had her own slow ardor been awakened. Once and now again . . . by the sight of the same man.

She did not know that she could not go on being merely comfortable, living the conventional life as the wife of a conventional young man. She did not know that for a girl of her beauty and nature and little mind her marriage was but an interlude thrust upon her almost unwillingly by Charlotte and Dick and Bill. It had never occurred to her that while she would be a girl for many men, she had a fixation for only one . . . a boy who had been growing up in the slums while she had been at a fashionable school in Switzerland.

Rand's popularity and success meant little to her. That he was the leader of the country's most sought-after band and that he was the idol of millions meant little to her. All her life she had been accustomed to admiration and position. Money had never greatly concerned her because she had always had as much as she wanted and she took it for granted that she always would. She had no patience with poverty because she could not understand why anyone need be poor.

So it was not Rand's success or money. It was the man himself . . . his handsome, confident, smiling face with the mouth that could be brutal, his voice, his touch. She probably could have been poor with him and never questioned her poverty.

She was a girl who had given no thought to her destiny. Bill was only a small part of it and her marriage to him an interlude which in later years she would, in all probability, scarcely remember.

And now, looking not at the handsome leader of the orchestra but at the man she had known in Miami, she was thinking only of how she could be alone with him.

She did not have to wait long. The orchestra stopped playing and the dancers applauded wildly. After the rumble of the drums, all was silent and all eyes turned to the table of the speech-makers. But not Evelyn's eyes. When she saw Rand leave the orchestra and walk hurriedly to the corridor, she got up and followed him. When for a moment she lost sight of him, she grew panicky and did not stop to glance back or apologize when she knocked a bottle from a table and someone barked, "Where do you think you're going?"

The wide corridor which encircled the interior of the armory was deserted except for her and for Rand who, not seeing Evelyn and anxious to avoid autograph-hounds, was hurrying up the steps to a room where he and his men had left their wraps and instrument cases.

As she followed him up the steps she heard a voice bellowing from below, "Ladies and gentlemen, I greet you on this occasion when . . ."

That was all of the speech she heard, for she was standing at the entrance of the room, seeing Rand mop his face with his handkerchief and light a cigaret before he turned and saw her.

For a second, thinking that it was just another crazy woman running after him, he scowled severely. Then, knowing it was Evelyn, he laughed and came toward her.

In the room that had never been his, but always Evelyn's room Bill saw that spring dawn in an atmosphere of stale smoke. Wearing a blue silk robe over blue pajamas, he was standing by the window which overlooked the rear garden when Evelyn came home.

Seeing her as she put the car in the garage, he felt relief that she had come home safely and that none of the horrible things he had been imagining had happened to her. He was angry because once again she had considered only herself. He thought then, "she probably met some people and had a good time and didn't think I was home waiting up for her and wondering what had happened to her."

When she came in the room, she looked tired and disheveled. Her face was shiny and her hair in disorder. But on closer inspection he saw in her face what he had never seen before—a determination and a certain wildness.

Controlling himself, he said, "I've been terribly worried about you, Evelyn. I suppose it's my fault. I shouldn't have left you. When you didn't show up at Lila's I left and came home early because I thought you had decided to come home, too."

"Did you?" She seemed scarcely to be listening. Then, turning to him and breathing in short, quick breaths, she said, "I'm going, Bill . . . I'm sorry . . . I'm leaving."

"You're what?"

"I'm leaving . . . I've got to pack."

"Where are you going?"

She went to the dresser and opened all the drawers. Then she stopped and turned and faced him. It was obvious that the explanation annoyed her.

"I'm going to get a divorce, Bill. Then I'm going to Hollywood."

Bill blinked. He thought for a second that she was mad . . . or drunk. Then he asked, frowning, "Evelyn, where were you all last night? Stop and tell me. You're not making any sense."

She straightened. In the daylight glare the white dress studded with brilliants looked absurd—like the dress of a circus performer. Even her diamonds looked false. And the deep crimson of her long nails was distasteful to him.

"I told you," she said impatiently. "I'm going to get a divorce and then I'm going to Hollywood. I'm going to meet Rand there." She bit into her lip as a child does after it has told a secret.

Then he knew. All at once Bill knew a great deal more . . . Why she had anticipated the charity ball . . . Why she had bought the new dress. . . . Why she had spent so much time on her face that they had been late again last night . . . Why she had insisted on staying alone . . . Why she had not come home all night.

He sat on his bed and looked at her. "Rand . . . I see . . . how long has this been going on, Evelyn?" He was ashamed. It was all so tawdry, so cheap.

"I've known him for a long time, but I haven't seen him for a long time."

"You mean you haven't seen him since we were married? Do you know what you're doing, Evelyn? Have you thought about it? This is a marriage you're breaking up. This is a home. It's serious. Don't you know that?"

She seemed scarcely to be listening. Turning to the dresser again, taking her belongings out hurriedly, she said, "I'm sorry, Bill, but I have to do it . . . I'm terribly sorry."

"You love him?"

She merely nodded.

Bill asked, "Then there's nothing I can say that will make you change your mind?"

She shook her head again and went on gathering up her things.

Getting up, he went out of the room to the balcony. The air outside was good. Good and clean. He could see the dew on the grass and a bird drinking at the little pool. All around him was the slow, warm beauty of wakening things. April . . . Another April.

VESTS COLORFUL

LONDON —(AP)— Fancy vests of many hues are being worn in British prisoners-of-war camps in Germany. The reason is a scheme the Red Cross instituted to brighten the somewhat drab existence of the men.

The vests are being made in large quantities by the men in hospital. Parcels containing cut-out parts with one completed vest are sent out each week. Odd lengths of cloth and patterns are collected by the Red Cross.

YANK WRITERS ARE POPULAR IN ITALIAN CAMP

Fellow Prisoners Like AP Correspondents, Captors Call One 'Lieutenant.'

By PAUL LEE

PORT. SAID, March 23—(Delayed)—(AP)—Larry Allen and Godfrey H. P. Anderson, Associated Press war correspondents now prisoners of Italy, are among the most popular men with their fellow-prisoners, judging by the words pouring unsolicited today from British seamen exchanged for Italian captives.

Allen, Maryland-born veteran of AP service, is in Camp 21 near Chieti, Italy, they said, describing it as one of the toughest camps in Italy with 20-foot stone walls and much barbed wire. It formerly was used for anti-Fascist political prisoners and now houses prominent war prisoners, including 40 American fliers, field service ambulance drivers and some civilian internees.

The 787 British prisoners exchanged Sunday at Mersin, Turkey, for 863 Italians and Germans reached here today.

Many of them sought me out, exclaiming:

"Are you an Associated Press man? I want to tell you about Larry Allen."

One was a lieutenant from the destroyer Sikh and was captured with Allen at Tobruk last Sept. 13 when the Sikh was lost during commando operations. The lieutenant said Allen got ashore in a lifeboat and was hospitalized for about two weeks for a cold caused by the chill of the wetting, but now was in excellent health.

From the start, the Italians treated Allen as a special prize, took him to Italy from Derna by plane, respectfully called him "lieutenant" and smilingly refused to heed his arguments that he was a correspondent and therefore a non-combatant.

Allen, undaunted, wrote letters to Pope Pius XII, President Roosevelt and other notables, but his fellow prisoners were not sure the Italians ever forwarded them. The other prisoners recently were surprised when Allen got a letter from the American secretary of state, Cordell Hull, addressed "Lieut.-Comdr. Allen," telling him there was small chance he would be exchanged.

Several of the exchanged prisoners testified to the address on the letter and theorized that it would help Allen to receive better treatment from his captors. The prisoners believe Allen never will be exchanged because the Italians were angry at some of his stories and fearful he would write even more revealing articles if he ever were free.

Beware Coughs Following Flu

After the flu is over and gone, the cough that follows may develop into chronic bronchitis if neglected. Creomulsion relieves promptly because it goes right to the seat of the trouble to help loosen and expel germ laden phlegm, and aid nature to soothe and heal raw, tender, inflamed bronchial mucous membranes. No matter how many medicines you have tried, tell your druggist to sell you a bottle of Creomulsion with the understanding you must like the way it quickly allays the cough or you are to have your money back.

AN INDEPENDENT NEWSPAPER

MANSFIELD, OHIO, FRIDAY, MARCH 26, 1943.

Let us not forget that the progress of mankind through the centuries has been brought about because time after time some men did what others said could not be done.—Harold E. Stassen.

Too many people are being given a free ride on "the ship of state."

Unheard remark: "I'm not buying any meat today—I want to wait until the point system starts next Monday."

Now 'We'll Try Something Else' Again

THE ROOSEVELT POLICY, as stated early in the New Deal, to the effect, "If it doesn't work we'll try something else," is again being followed in an effort to clear up the farm muddle.

Now there's to be a new administrator of food production and distribution, but it appears that, as usual, this is to be an addition to the already cumbersome machinery of government, rather than a substitute for anything or anybody now employed.

Selection for the new post is Chester C. Davis, president of the St. Louis Federal Reserve bank, who has an agricultural background as editor of a farm paper, administrator of the AAA, and recipient of the American Farm Bureau's medal for "distinguished service to agriculture."

What this does to Secretary of Agriculture Wickard, who has had "full responsibility for and control over the nation's food program," has not yet been made clear, but it is being assumed that Wickard will be permitted to remain in his cabinet post. in the same manner that Frances Perkins has been retained in the position of secretary of labor, so that the unpleasantness of firing anyone can be avoided—in accordance with another of the expensive Roosevelt policies.

First quoted comment of Mr. Davis, in connection with his acceptance of the "tough assignment," is "I would a whole lot rather be tackling it as of two years ago than now. . . . Now there are so many complications that teamwork will be quite a job."

Yes, it will be "quite a job" to work some semblance of order out of the present chaos of farm labor and machinery shortages, demands of higher prices, requirements for greatly increased production, and the like.

But, as one visionary scheme after another flops, there's nothing left but to "try something else"—and it may be hoped that the war isn't lost, or the nation starved, before experimentation reaches to the point of evidencing administrative common sense.

Heavy Weight On Young Shoulders

HOWEVER unimpressed the Axis powers may seem to have been by fighting strength of the United States, they can scarcely fail to become disturbed by comparison of their own paltry costs of war with the way this country is dishing out billions to accomplish their defeat.

If mere expenditure of money could win a war there would be no doubt about the United States alone whipping the entire Axis group by the middle of this year, for by that time this country will have put as much money into the war effort as Germany, Italy and Japan will have done by the end of the year.

In fact, the $100,000,000,000 which President Roosevelt has estimated as this year's war costs for the United States, is more than the total of all other belligerents combined, including Great Britain's $21,330,000,000 and Russia's $15,000,000,000.

Explanation of how this comparatively young nation chances to be called upon to bear such a disproportionate share of the war's cost is found in a bulletin issued by the New York State Economic Council:

"Although the U. S. budget tops the war expenditures of allies and enemies combined, the United States will not maintain larger armies and navies than all these other nations put together. It does not mean the United States will produce more munitions and supplies than all of them. It means that, through unprecedentedly high wages, through overtime due to the 40-hour week, through an unwieldly bureaucracy, we are paying far more for far less, proportionately, than any other nation. Such prodigality is a serious threat to our country's economic future."

Yes, but what would you suggest be done about it?

Scattered Thoughts

OBSERVERS note more than an ordinary amount of forgetfulness these days—apparently due to people trying to think about too many things at one time.

This does not apply to the customarily absent-minded folks, such as those of whom it is said. "She'd forget her head if it wasn't fastened on." but extends into circles in which dependable memory is considered an essential attribute.

Glaring example is a recent incident in which each member of a men's club was expected to bring a book to be sent to an army camp—and all planned to do so. About one half the members took a book to the next meeting, as agreed, but with the others it ran along week after week, with the apologetic explanation, "I laid it out to bring but forgot it."

Shoe dealers tell of numerous instances in which a transaction is completed, up to the point of requesting the required No. 17 coupon, only to find that this has been forgotten. Well-intentioned motorists park their car and walk away without depositing a coin in the parking meter. Dozens of cases have come to light of families going through a butterless week because the husband forgot to buy the pound that his wife told him to bring home last Saturday.

Memory lapses can be annoying, costly—and sometimes dangerous. This is a particularly good time to remember to "keep your mind on what you're doing."

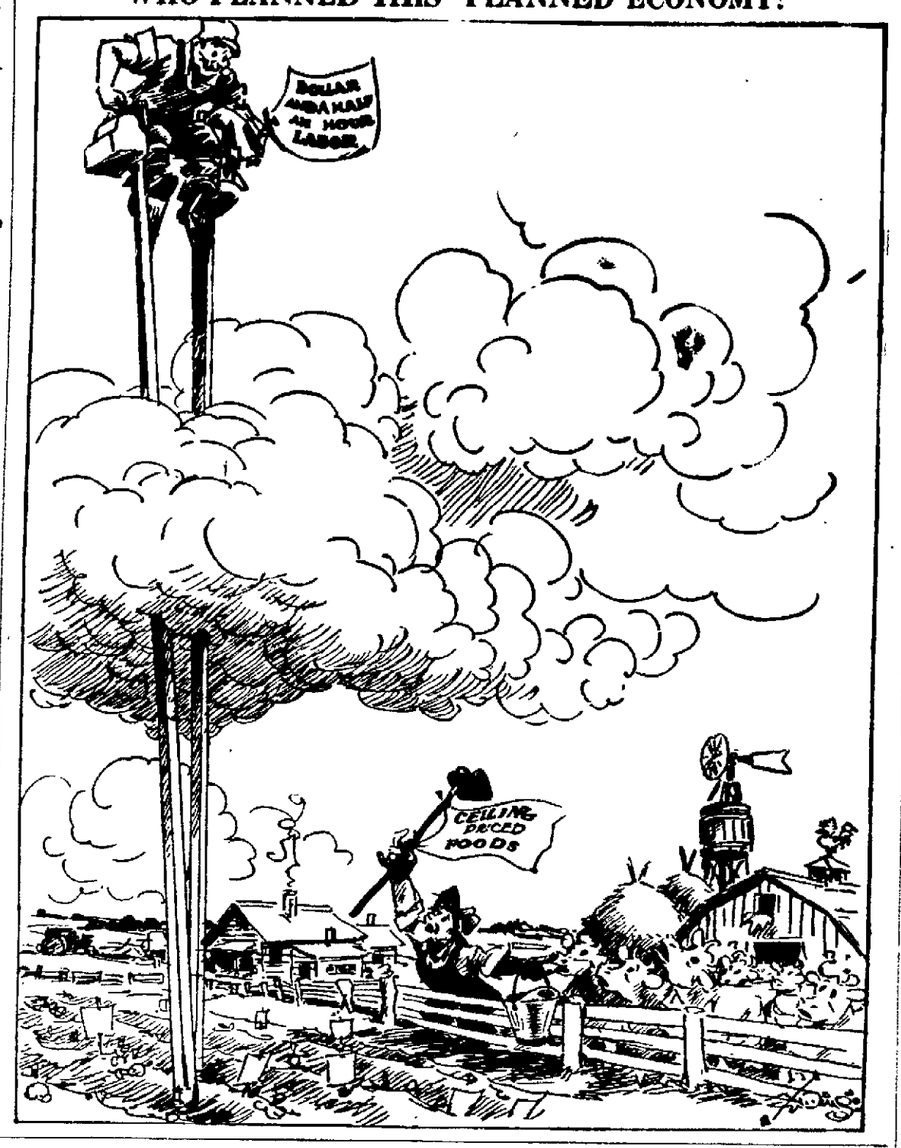
Banquets Feel War's Effect

HOTELS and restaurants are discouraging banquets. They find it difficult to cater to regular customers without taking on extra parties.

Considered as a social function, banquets are not always what they are cracked up to be. Sometimes the food suggests that, instead of being individually prepared, it has come off an assembly line; and the company, unless the diner is fortunate enough to sit among friends, is not often exciting.

Thomas Hardy, the great novelist and poet, thought banquets a waste of time, no matter how prominent the guests. "Great people," said he, "have nothing to say worth calling conversation." So if banquets are a war casualty, Americans can bear up.

WHO PLANNED THIS "PLANNED ECONOMY?"



Truce In Battles of the Bureaus

By JACK STINNETT

WASHINGTON—The "Battle of Washington" may not be over for good, but it looks as if a very definite armistice has been declared.

I don't mean that there won't be occasional inter-departmental and intra-departmental flare-ups, but the kind of feuding that has gone on since defense started and during our first year of war is about over.

That's the conclusion of many Washington observers' and the reasons for it are pretty sound.

In the first place, it's generally believed that the president has recently cracked down on his executive departments and agencies with the simple caution that hereafter they could iron out their differences in private or else. Recalling what happened to former OPA Administrator Leon Henderson, that "or else" carries a lot of weight.

Secondly, the power of "Second President" James F. Brynes in handling home front matters is apparently growing by leaps and bounds and filling a long-felt gap in administration of the war effort.

WASHINGTON has seen few better smoother-outers than pint-sized Jimmy Byrnes. His method seems to be to bring warring opponents into the ring, knock their heads together, and send them both home happy. It's pretty clear already that Byrnes has the authority to back up his decisions and that where domestic matters are concerned, the "left wing" of the White House, as he humorously dubs his east wing offices, are just about as important as those of the president in the west wing.

Point No. 3: Charles L. Wilson is firmly in the saddle at the War Production Board and no sooner was he entrenched there than both WPB Chief Donald Nelson and Army and Navy heads came out with the declaration that there was no friction between military and civilian supply officials. The elevation of Wilson and the resignation of Ferdinand Eberstadt at least centered in one person authority that had for a long time been divided and thus obscured.

ALSO, on the production front recently came from Lt. Gen. Brehon Somervell, chief of the services of supply, what amounted to an order of the day. Speaking off-the-record to his staff officials, he said: "We can not afford to engage in any intra-services of supply battles or in the battle of Washington. There is only one real battle going on in the whole world right now.

"Let us not under any provocation, no matter how great, be drawn into useless bickering which turns our blood into bile and taunts us into anger against those with whom we should work in harmony."

Another factor is the manner in which Price Administrator Prentiss Brown has taken hold of the rationing and price control programs.

There still are skirmishes in the "Battle of Washington"—in labor, manpower, agriculture—but they can hardly be called more than that now. A few more shifts of power and a few more conferences with Byrnes wielding the gavel and so far as the executive branch of government goes, we may be able to report "all quiet on the Potomac."

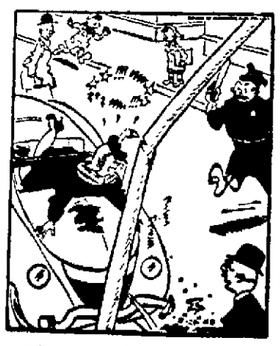
LIFE'S LIKE THAT



"I'm no good at sayin' things, but I think you know how I feel."

Listen World!

By ELSIE ROBINSON

Always Beginning

REMEMBER how you used to plan your life when you were fifteen or sixteen? Lying in the sun drenched grass, chewing a straw, swapping confidences with your best pal, you'd map out the years.

You couldn't decide of course, exactly what you'd be. An engineer, maybe, a flyer or inventor, a Hollywood star. A writer, artist or dreamer. But of one thing you were sure. You weren't going to let life just ravel away.

You had seen enough of those faded old has-beens who'd spent their lives in dreaming, without ever accomplishing a single, concrete success. You weren't going to be like that! You were going to have a definite plan and see it through. There'd be a regular blue print for your life.

Naturally you'd have to work. Work hard. But you'd have a plan. And, some day, the struggle would come to an end. You'd land where you wanted to be.

It never occurred to you, did it?—that no matter how hard you worked or schemed, your plans might never be fulfilled? You never dreamed that life would always be Just Beginning . . . that your schemes would never come to a perfect ending? Yet it's so. There are no polished endings to life. No matter how hard you dream or plan or work, there's another job waiting, just ahead.

Even as a little tot, you began to recognize this fact. But few of us are willing to accept it. We continue to cling to our fairy-tale dream of Happy Endings. Some day, we're sure, everything will come out just right. We'll find the perfect job, the perfect love, perfect confidence and courage. We'll be healed of the timidity that has always plagued us, the dawdling and day dreaming.

So we dream. Yet the dream never comes true. Life is a story without an ending. In its very wonder and inconsistency lie its beauty and inspiration. If Life ever came to a perfect ending, there would be no excuse for struggling on. But it never does.

Life is always beginning, always stopping, always going on, always faltering and hoping. And in that very stopping and beginning lies the miracle of our growth and hope. Each dawn brings a new chance. We may have made a cruel mistake yesterday. But today there's a new sunrise.

What's the secret of success? Not the job we have to do but our attitude toward that job. So we realize that life is a stop-and-go performance, never beginning, never ending. Or do we exist in a perpetual fairy tale?

Do we see the wonder of a constantly unfolding life or must we always be pushing and peeving and pouting in our frenzy for a new beginning or a spectacular ending? It's up to us. Our lives are as tall and as wide, as shining and as brave as the measure of our own laughter and courage, love and imagination.

WE LIVE AS MUCH AS WE DARE TO FEEL, AND DIE WITH THE EBB TIDE OF OUR OWN EMOTIONS.

DARE TO LIVE ALL YOU CAN FEEL!

DARE TO BE!

Today's Thought.

The test of your behavior is the fix the country would be in if everybody behaved the same way. —Akron Beacon Journal.

Dave Boone Says:

LOOKS like a great summer for bacon rinds, "feet with the bone in," ears and snouts. They're about the only things you can get for a couple of points, under the new meat rationing system. Feet with the bone out, I wouldn't know about. But I think I've been getting some ears and snouts lately.

* * *

That item "yokes with the rattle and triangle bone in" has everybody asking time out, including the butchers. The thing to worry about is the rattle in the customers, not in the meats.

* * *

Dried beef takes more points than anything on the list, including tenderloin steaks. You'll need fewer points to get a nice steak, but in addition to the points you'll have to know how to wrestle, kick, punt and play a little hockey.

A fellow with a clam rake and a fishing rod is going to have a big advantage over the rest of us this summer. Unless they adopt a point system for clam rakes and worms.

* * *

I'd hate to have to shop around for some garden worms with the rattle and triangle bone in.

Washington Merry-Go-Round

By DREW PEARSON

Eden Says Britain Will Fight On Until Jap Menace Is Wiped Out

WASHINGTON—Anthony Eden left his diplomatic language behind when he went to Capitol Hill for a private luncheon with congressional leaders.

Not even Harold Ickes could have been more forthright in answering questions shot at him, at Eden's own invitation, during the luncheon.

The young British foreign minister touched on a variety of subjects dealing with international affairs, but got in his most effective shots in answer to questions regarding the isolationist bromide that the British are interested chiefly in licking the Nazis and will leave us to fight Japan alone.

"Let's forget emotion and sentiment and look at this as a cold-blooded business proposition," declared Eden. "After finishing with Germany and Italy, we have every reason in the world to continue the fight against Japan until we have crushed her also."

Reminding his listeners that Japan was as much an enemy of Great Britain as of the United States, Eden observed with biting emphasis:

"Australia and New Zealand are part of the British Commonwealth of Nations. Among other commonwealths and dominions, they have been in this war from the start. Do you think for a moment that we are going to let them down? Do you think for a moment that any true Englishman would desert these valiant people? We will fight together until the Japanese menace, like the Nazi, is wiped from the face of the earth.

"Yes, and there's Singapore, gentlemen," remarked Eden coldly. "It's a matter of pride with us to revenge Singapore."

Eden pointed out that it was realistic for the United States, if for no other reason, to pursue the war against Germany and Italy until those nations were smashed.

Just as Calais in the control of the Nazis is a danger pointed at the heart of the British Empire, he said, "so would the British Isles, occupied by the Nazis, be a dagger pointed at the United States. Neither of us has any choice. The United States, Russia, Britain and all the other United Nations are going to keep on fighting until we have annihilated the Axis powers."

Streamlined Menus.

THE MENU for the Eden luncheon consisted of a small piece of roast beef, a vegetable, potatoes, coffee and pie. The British foreign minister ate sparingly. When the luncheon was over, Senate Foreign Relations Chairman Tom Connolly, of Texas, remarked to colleagues, who flocked in to shake hands with Eden, that they "didn't miss much in the way of food."

"However," added Connolly with a nod to Eden, "I guess it would have been a sumptuous repast in Great Britain."

"Right, Senator," grinned Eden.

Rumi Plan In Reverse.

A PREVIEW of "Desert Victory," a real life movie of Gen. Montgomery's rout of Marshal Rommel, was attended by Representative Edward Hebert of Louisiana and Charles Campbell, press attache of the British supply council.

"What did you think of it?" Campbell asked Hebert as the two emerged, blurry-eyed, from 20th Century-Fox headquarters in Washington.

Hebert was a hard-boiled editor of the New Orleans States for 15 years before coming to Washington. He replied:

"That was the most powerful moving picture I have ever seen. After watching all those gallant young British troops killed in action, I feel like doubling my income tax payment to the government."

Spanish Prisoners.

WHEN Secretary Hull was asked in a press conference whether Spanish Republican refugees in North Africa would be released from Vichy prison camps, he replied that they would be released after consultation with the Franco government.

Unfortunately consulting Franco would be tantamount to consulting Hitler about the status of German-Jewish refugees in the United States.

However, the U. S. army in North Africa has gone one step further than that. It is now using Spanish Republican prisoners in North Africa as contract labor gangs.

This has been reported officially to the state department by one of Mr. Hull's consuls, who says that a U. S. air corps unit has signed a contract with the Compagnie Mediterranee-Niger to construct barracks and hangars. The labor used for this construction are Spanish Republicans, who operate virtually as slave labor.

The Spaniards, who fought, bled and were taken prisoners for the sake of a democratic-republican government in Spain, are only too glad to work for the Americans, according to the state department report. But at present, having been imprisoned by the French Vichyites, they are working at slave wages for a Vichy company.

At Casablanca also several thousand Spanish prisoners are working on American construction projects at the starvation wage of seven francs a day—about fourteen cents.

This brings up the whole problem of Spanish refugees, about which the state department is saying little. For some time, the Mexican government has expressed willingness to serve as a haven for Spanish Loyalist refugeees, who, if they went back to Spain, face imprisonment or execution.

However with U. S. ships returning empty from North Africa, and with Mexico refusing to send us more farm workers because of her own labor shortage, nothing has been done about Spanish refugees.

For five years they have been prisoners of the French, under the most degraded conditions. Yet the state department, having done its best to encourage a Franco victory during the Spanish civil war, now merely shrugs its shoulders and says it will consult Franco.

ERNIE PYLE — Roving Reporter

Military Police Are Carefully Selected; Ernie Tells About Two of Them He Knows.

SOMEWHERE IN ALGERIA—Before leaving this special vicinity, I want to tell you about a couple of friends of mine. They are military police. I like them as much as anybody I know in the whole army.

They've been coming to see me so long now that I've actually forgotten how we first got acquainted. I know an officer who was in my room one day when they were there, and after they left he said to me:

"You're the damndest guy I ever saw. I've been in the army three years and you're the first guy I ever heard who knew an M. P. personally. Nobody knows any M. P.'s."

Maybe not, but if so they're ignorant of one of the finest groups in the army. The military police don't have the taint to them they had in the last war. This time they are a specially picked, highly trained, permanent organization. An M. P. serves throughout the war as an M. P., he is proud of his organization, and he is respected by his fellow-soldiers.

One day an officer and I were talking about a barroom brawl the night before in which a drunk had tried to stab an M. P., and the officer said:

"Anybody who starts anything with an M. P. is insane. They're picked men, and their training starts where Commandos leave off. They know every method of fighting in the world."

And from the M. P.s that I've seen, from their demeanor and their conduct, I believe that next to Rangers and Paratroopers they are really the pick of the army.

BUT to get around to my two friends. They are:

Corpl. Freeland L. Riles, jr., Darlington, S. C. and Pvt. Thomas Stewart, Scurry, Tex.

Riles goes by the nickname "Snip," and Stewart goes by "Tom." They both wear white leggins, and brass whistle-and-chain over their shoulders, and Sam Browne belts, and carry a big .45, and believe me they both know how to shoot it too.

They never knew each other before the army, of course, but they're the same age to the day. Both born on July 7, 1919. "Snip" went only through the eighth grade, Tom through the ninth. Then they both started to work.

Both of them talk low and slow and drag out their words as though they had all day to say a sentence. Snip's is the soft easy drawl of the deep South, while Tom's is the wide, frank drawl of the open spaces. They're as different as day and night.

"Give me open country," says Tom. "I like big country where if you want to holler you can get out and holler."

Tom's face is windy-red, and he is lank and jointy. In the respectful fashion of the country we come from he still refers to his mother as "Mama." Neither he nor Snip is making any headway at all trying to learn French.

Tom used to be a carpenter. He likes best to do the interior cabinetwork when a house is about finished. He says his specialty is making tables. He made a table for the general when he was at Camp Bowie in Texas.

Snip was a traveling route-agent for a bakery. He used to drive his bread truck 180 miles a day and make as high as $60 a week during tobacco season when people had money.

Snip is a handsome youngster, black-haired and spic-and-span, but very quiet and serious. He was a star athlete in school.

He knows jujitsu and all the other methods of fighting. But says he'll never use his jujitsu, for it's too easy to cripple somebody permanently. Both boys say they have very little trouble. Most soldiers who get to whooping it up in the backroom quiet down like mice and walk along peacefully the moment an M. P. shows up.

MY FRIENDSHIP with these two fighters has struck me as odd, for I'm nearly old enough to be their father, and there's little in companionship I can contribute to them.

Yet they come daily and sit and chat; they say that if I ever need an escort anywhere just to holler and they'll take me; they insist on running errands for me; they bought a special bottle of champagne and brought it to my room on Christmas Eve for us three.

We've arranged to take trips together after the war. Snip insists on taking me on a South Carolina deer hunt, a famous institution where the man who misses his first deer gets his shirttail cut off.

And Tom has a two-week catfishing and cougar-hunting trip down the Nueces river all planned. I've agreed to go on these trips although I don't know why, for I've never shot anything bigger than a rabbit in my life, and never intend to.

I've noticed that both boys almost always prefare their after-war plans by saying "If I live through it. . . ." Nobody talks a great deal about that, but it's in the back of everybody's mind. It's even in mine sometimes, despite the nice safety of my non-combatancy. Ever a deer-hunt looks beautiful way off there in the future.

A Farmer's Diary

By CALVIN A. BYERS

A Little Walk

I WALKED down the rutty gravel road about a mile this evening to where the bridge crosses Honey creek at the base of Greenwood hill. Field mice squeaked and scampered along the nearer ditch, among tall blades of bluegrass that made an ideal shelter. Once, as I drew near a well secluded tunnel, I heard that rare strange rhythmic song that a mouse will make.

A song sparrow on a tiny shrub brought forth a sleepy note. The farmer's house by the curve atop the hill was dark and very quiet. I heard the drowsy movements of farm animals in the barn that borders the highway.

From here I descended into the little valley. Sudden coolness rose. I felt the chill against my hands and face. In a few moments I set foot upon the bridge. Up stream, to the west, I heard the liquid music of a low waterfalls—the lighter, higher sound as the water glided over the riffles. Deep beneath a rooted bank, I heard a faint echo as it fell below an elm trunk half buried in the sand.

It was a moonlight evening. Eastward, along the edge of Greenwood hill, I saw the shadows of the pines and spruce lay far across the ruffling waters of the Clearfork, stretched across a level meadow in a maze of animated shadows, as a breeze swept down the valley.

Down beyond the point where our creek meets the larger stream, the heavier water volume sprayed the whole, thickly wooded slope with liquid sounds. I listened long, leaning on the rail of the little bridge. For centuries those sounds have been constant as the stream carved out the massive sandstones at its southern edge.

A killdeer wheeled his graceful flight and touched the broken surface of the water with his wings, then swooped high with loud outcries. Only by his call could I follow his uncertain course in and out of the shadows of the rocky hill.

The deep-voiced night owl carried the solitary message of his race for many miles along the peaceful winding stream. The moon, reflected in the bosom of the water, mocked him sorely, only to be outdone by the brighter light above.

I stood and claimed for my own the beauties of sight and sound—singing stream, swooping bird, level farm land and rugged slope. I knew that I was a part of a lovely, age-old scene—and it made me glad.

CHOIR, DUO-PIANISTS WILL GIVE CONCERT

Treble Choir, Under the Direction of Mrs. Thurza Hazeltine; Mrs. George Hall and Miss Thelma Reed Will Give Music Benefit.

THE SECOND benefit concert given by the Treble Choir, with Mrs. Margaret Hall and Miss Thelma Reed, duo-pianists, will be given for the National Children's Fund of the Junior Red Cross, under the direction of Mrs. Thurza Hazeltine, Sunday, March 28, at 4 p. m. in the First Methodist church.

The Treble Choir was organized four years ago, with a membership of eight girls, four of whom are still active in the choir. The membership is now thirty-five, and several of the members are out of town, in schools.

The organization is non-profit. The girls donate their services for many worthwhile projects. Last year, their benefit for the Children's Fund of the American Red Cross was so successful that it was decided to repeat it.

Mrs. George Hall and Miss Thelma Reed are both active in music circles in Mansfield, and their appearances are always enthusiastically received. They have given many concerts in Mansfield and surrounding towns.

The treble choir is directed by Mrs. Hazeltine, who directs both junior and senior choirs of the First Methodist church, where the concert will be given.

Among the selections included in the treble choir's program will be "Jesus, Our Lord, We Adore Thee" by James, "Jesus, Rapture of My Heart" by Bach, "Bless the Lord, O My Soul" by Ippolitof-Ivanoff, "The Wind" by McCollum, "Make Believe" from "Showboat" by Kern, "Wooden Shoes" from "Sweethearts" by Herbert and "Dedication" by Franz.

Mrs. Hall and Miss Reed will play "The Jester" by Beecher, "Arabesque" by Debussy, "Coronation Scene" by Moussorgsky, "Nocturne" by Rachmaninoff, and "Waltz" and "Polonaise" by Arensky.

The last group of songs to be included on the program will be sung by the choir and played by Mrs. Hall and Miss Reed. These numbers are "A Pretty Girl Is Like a Melody" by Berlin, "March of the Little Tin Soldiers" by Pierne, and a medley entitled "Salute to Our Service Men."

Lynn Decker, popular young pianist is the accompanist for the choir, which is comprised of the following first sopranos: Louise Turner, Betty Pagnard, Gretchen Bohland, Mary Horst, Jean Wentz, Ann Wheatley, Nora Orosan, Mary Palmer, Carol Ann Spencer, Betty Murray, Carol Cline, June Lenhart, Lola Williams, Ruth Wagoner, Dorothy June and Katherine Kierne.

Second sopranos are: Betty Smart, Kathryn Schaller, Gladys Kerr, Nancy Twitchell, Joan Solomon, Ruth Breyman, Eleanor Homerick, Mary Betty Hoffman, Jean Rench, and Ann Millenbruck. Altos are Barbara Morris, Maxine Hawk, Norma Hess, Barbara Tingley, Barbara Shively, Ruth McKee, Shirley Rankin and Billy McQuillen.

Mrs. Julia Kiene Gives Talk on 'Tone Up' Meals

A cure for spring fever was prescribed yesterday afternoon by Mrs. Julia Kiene, in addressing the company's Health for Victory club.

"Eat an abundance of foods rich in vitamin C such as dandelion greens, water cress, lettuce and chives to tone up your system," Mrs. Kiene suggested, adding:

"Many people think spring fever is simply laziness, but really it is a condition caused by lack of enough vitamin C in daily diets. It is more pronounced in early spring because so many persons have gone all winter without the proper amount of greens and fresh vegetables and fruits."

Years ago, the speaker pointed out, spring fever was a "very serious thing causing much suffering among people who went through long winters without fresh foods containing vitamin C in their diets." Sulphur and molasses was the standard remedy to "thin the blood."

Mrs. Kiene said potatoes "if cooked properly" are an excellent source of vitamin C. Three cooking rules are essential to preserve the vitamin and mineral content of potatoes: (1) use little or no water, (2) bring to steam quickly, do not boil violently, (3) cook in covered utensils and do not stir. "By following those three rules, you protect the vitamins against their enemies—water, heat and air," Mrs. Kiene explained.

The Health for Victory members were urged to do a lot of canning this spring to preserve vitamin C foods now for use next winter. "The vitamin C in fruits and vegetables is protected as long as the cans or glass jars remain sealed," the nutrition expert said.

Although a discussion of meat rationing had not originally been planned for yesterday's meeting, Mrs. Kiene hurriedly prepared charts and diagrams and included this timely subject in her talk. She explained which cuts of meat will be good buys from the ration point standpoint.

Winners of drawings for foods prepared during the meeting and for 10 canvas lunch bags were: Mrs. Julia Pasceilich and Mrs. Ramona Smith and the Mesdames John Hardesty, Ed Hagerty, Charles Brissell, Jay Fankhauser, Charles D. Myers, J. Winbigler, Forest Tinkey, R. B. McLaughlin, John Kinsey, Fred Alacca, Charles B. Kline, George H. Smith, Ira Bronson, W. M. Wilson and M. J. Brinkerhoff.

Choir Will Present Second Benefit Concert Sunday, March 28

Beta Kappa Tau Completes Plans For Rush Parties

Final plans for rush month were announced Thursday night by Mrs. John Baki, president of Betta Kappa Tau sorority, when members held their regular business meeting in the mezzanine of the Madison theater.

Mrs. Paul Scott acted as treasurer for roll call and collection of dues in the absence of Mrs. Peter Merschdorf. Hell week activities, from March 29 to April 2 will be headed by Miss Bobby Berno. Mrs. Paul Chorpening, Mrs. Leslie Snyder, Mrs. George Burgess and Miss Wilma Sauder.

The committee for informal initiation ceremonies on April 2nd will be Mrs. Carol Kelly, Miss Rose Huck, Mrs. William Knarr and Miss Maxine Pearson. Formal initiation ceremonies to be held April 5, will be conducted by Miss Eleanor Star, Mrs. Frederic Ackerman, Mrs. Baki and Miss Maxine Rimmer.

The next rush party for the pledges of the sorority will be a tea on Sunday, March 27, from 2 until 4 p. m. at the Colonial Room, Park avenue west.

The next business meeting is scheduled for April 8 in the mezzanine of the Madison theater.

Muskie Members Are Guests at Birthday Party

Mrs. Russell Dallenberg, North Mulberry street, entertained members of the Muskie club, and two guests, Wednesday night, with a birthday dinner party.

Table decorations were in pastel colors, with a birthday cake as a centerpiece. Following the dinner, Mrs. Dallenberg entertained her guests with piano selections.

Games were played during the afternoon. Each member received a gift. Mrs. Dallenberg was presented with a gift from members, and her two guests.

The members of the Muskie club have decided to cancel all meetings until early fall.

Mr., Mrs. Dillon Entertain Class

Mr. and Mrs. Charles Dillon, Route 3, entertained members of the Fellowship class of the Evangelical Congregational Sunday school, Thursday night.

Mr. Dillon, the class president, presided at the business meeting. Roll call was answered by quoting scripture. Rev. R. W. Taubenheim read the scripture for the evening.

Prizes were awarded to those having paid their dues for the past year. Gifts were given to members having birthdays since the first part of January.

At the close of the evening, luncheon was served by Mrs. Dillon. The next meeting will be held April 29. The place of that meeting will be announced later.

Mrs. R. Saltzgaber Honored at Shower

AT A LOVELY dessert bridge party, given at the Colonial room, Park avenue west, Thursday night, by Mrs. Robert Lantz, 119 Vennum avenue, Mrs. Robert Saltzgaber was guest of honor. Thursday night's event was the first in a series of post nuptials planned for the recent bride.

Mrs. Saltzgaber, the former Miss Marjorie Urich was married in Greenup, Ky., Nov. 7, 1942. Her marriage was announced recently by her mother, Mrs. Russell Urich, 182 Western avenue.

Three tables of bridge were in play during the evening. Prizes were won by Mrs. Earl Saltzgaber and Miss Lucille Calver.

When luncheon was served at a late hour, a color scheme of green and white was used for table decorations. Centerpieces at the small tables were arrangements of white carnations and evergreens. After the dessert, guests removed the vases and made individual corsages.

A special guest at the party was Miss Anna Jane Lloyd, 214 Euclid avenue.

A shower of kitchen gifts was presented to the honoree in a clever manner. A huge clothes basket was decorated in gay colors to represent an Easter basket, with large varicolored inflated balloons over the top, to look like Easter eggs.

Those who attended the party were the honoree, the hostess, Mrs. Russell Urich, Mrs. Earl Saltzgaber and the Misses Lenore Betz, Camilla Calene, Nancy and Carolyn Cox, Evelyn Art, Lucille Calver, Anna Jane Lloyd and Mary Betty Hoffman.

Mrs. Saltzgaber is an employe of the Westinghouse Electric and Manufacturing company. Mr. Saltzgaber is employed at the Ideal Electric company. They are making their home in the Washington apartments on Bowman street.

Following the meeting, the group counted sales tax stamps. Hostesses at the meeting included Mrs. Drushel, Mrs. Miller Jones, Miss Mary Painter and Mrs. Frank Gadfield.

The April meeting will be held the 28th of the month at the home of Mrs. W. F. Wilson, 489 Crescent Road. Assisting Mrs. Wilson will be Mrs. H. F. Althouse.

Present Review Of 'Gay Nineties' At Kiwanis Party

The Workshop Players of the Children's theater entertained at one of the most successful ladies' night parties given by the Kiwanis club in the ballroom of the Mansfield-Leland hotel Thursday night. The young actors and actresses presented the "Gay Nineties Review."

John W. Graham, social committee member, who acted as chairman of the event, introduced the Kiwanis president, Judge H. H. Schettler, who welcomed the guests.

The "Gay Nineties Review" was presented in three parts: a minstrel, a scene in Tony Pastor's restaurant, and a melodrama. The audience joined in many of the old-time songs—hissed the villain and cheered the hero.

Bill Gandert, Owen Hegarty, Dick DiSanze and the Flora Dora company, with Mrs. William Bishop, pianist, comprised the minstrel show, in which the songs "Dixie," "Hot Time in the Old Town," and "Moonlight Bay" were featured.

The part of Tony Pastor, master of ceremonies, was taken by John Bishop in the restaurant scene. Others taking part included George Ridenour, Doris Alverson, Peggy Boyer, Jean Kroeger, Bettie Gibson, Frankie Lane, Ann Thompson, Sigrid Meisse, John Bishop, Bob Gandert, Carolyn Pifer and Martha Shiplet.

Characters in the melodrama were portrayed by Bettie Gibson, Doris Alverson, Owen Hegarty and John Bishop.

Scenery used in the review was furnished by Miss Ruth Dukes and Mrs. Dan Haber; costumes and hats by Mrs. George Ingram and Mrs. O. T. Alverson; make-up by Mrs. J. A. Herbert; dances and dancers were from the Ethyl Battin Dance studio. The pianist for entr' acts was Mrs. C. O. Anglin.

REDDY KILOWATT SAYS

oh BOYS and GIRLS here's a tip about FLYING KITES

• This is certainly swell weather for flying kites—lot's of wind and everything. But here's a little tip I want to pass along to you so you won't spoil your fun.

• Never fly kites near electric lines. You know that some kite strings are made of fine wire, so if your kite string happened to come into contact with the electric wire you might be injured. Even a damp cotton string is a conductor of electricity.

• Keep away from houses, trees, and far from streets and roads. You know you can't watch your kite and traffic, too.

• If your kite darts from side to side, pull it down and add more tail. Keep a steady pull on the string at all times. If the kite begins to fall, pull in quickly.

• Don't climb trees to rescue your kite unless you are positive that the limbs are strong enough to support your weight.

• And finally, NEVER CLIMB ELECTRIC LIGHT OR TELEPHONE POLES if your kite becomes entangled in wires. I certainly do not want any of my little friends to be injured while playing. And never try to knock it down with sticks or stones—you'll ruin the kite anyway. In case of emergency be sure to call me.

Your friend,
REDDY KILOWATT.

COLONY CLUB MEMBERS HAVE LUNCHEON MEET

Hostesses Entertain Members, Guests at Mansfield-Leland Hotel; Six Newcomers From Different States Welcomed Into Club.

THE MANSFIELD-LELAND HOTEL was the scene Thursday afternoon of a dessert luncheon for members and guests of the Colony club, at which six newcomers were welcomed into the club.

Those who were taken in at yesterday's meeting were Mrs. E. S. Denham, formerly of Long Island, N. Y., Mrs. H. B. Mitchell, formerly of Long Meadow, Mass.; Mrs. W. K. Gries, formerly of Philadelphia, Pa.; Mrs. E. F. Patterson, of Washington, D. C; Mrs. R. B. Allen, of Denver, Colo., and Mrs. R. W. Blackburn, of Detroit, Mich.

Guests at the event included Mrs. Mark Wolcott from Philadelphia, Pa.; Mrs. A. L. Lander, of this city, and Mrs. H. G. Warner, of Osawatamie, Kan.

Members and guests were entertained at the luncheon meeting by Mrs D. N. Roller, who presented the program. She gave an exceedingly interesting talk on her collection of bells, part of which she brought with her for illustration.

The next meeting of the club will be held April 8. Hostesses at that meeting will be Mrs. C. A. Banfill, Mrs. C R. Deisler and Mrs. L. C Sherer.

Hostesses at Thursday's meeting were Mrs J. W. Noice, Mrs H. R. Kauffman and Mrs. A. D Thomas.

Shelters Girl Her Husband Once Loved

BEATRICE FAIRFAX

Dear Miss Fairfax:

The problem is not mine but my sister's. I think she or any other woman who would act as she is acting under the circumstances, is insane. To make a long story short, a girl came to see her the other day, told her she was going to have a baby, and the father of the child was my sister's husband.

This man is now overseas. He and my sister have been married six years, have no children, which is a great disappointment to both. As the girl was left without resources and her family declined to do anything for her, my sister has agreed to take her into her home and adopt the child and bring it up as her own. She is not even bitter against her husband. Do you think she is crazy or what?

WORRIED SISTER.

No, I don't think this woman who is about to provide for a girl in sore need of Christian charity, is insane. Her action may be difficult for an average person to understand, because she is evidently of finer clay than many of us are. No matter how this arrangement works out, this woman will have the recompense of having done the thing her conscience bade her do and sanctioned.

However, what do my readers think about this?

Soldier Finds She's Married.

Dear Miss Fairfax:

I'm a married woman with two children. My husband and I are very fond of each other, but I joined one of these "Write to Soldiers" clubs, and one of the service men began to take things very seriously. I suppose it was wrong in me, but I answered his letters in the same spirit.

Evidently he fell in love with my letters, and I did try awfully hard to make them interesting. He appeared the other day and when he discovered that not only was I married, the mother of two children and ten years older than he is, but I was very happy with my husband. He called me a dishonest sneak and my husband had to interfere. No more soldiers' letters for me

MUCH DISTURBED.

You see another reason for the wisdom of Uncle Sam's Censorship Regulation (Section XIII, Article 51) which reads "'Pen-Pal' letters (i. e. correspondence between postal acquaintances of no previous friendship) shall be returned in each instance or suppressed."

More serious results than the disappointment of a soldier imposed upon by a woman claiming to be single and interested in him, are back of this ruling. Many writers of these "Pen-pal" letters, instead of being the lovely and trusting young girls they claim to be were bearded and spectacled middle-aged men engaged in doing Fifth Column work, at large salaries, by our enemies

With diabolical ingenuity, they fish these trusting service men concerning the movement of troops, sailing of ships and other bits of important information. Writing to strangers has always been discouraged in this column.

Speech Defect Corrected.

Dear Miss Fairfax:

A near relative of mine who is a very handsome lad has a speech defect owing to a cleft palate. He's highly intelligent and has an excellent command of language. Owing to this trouble, he has been rejected by the Army and is unable to get a job. It is spoiling his disposition and giving him an embittered attitude toward life Can you tell me if anything can be done about this?

A READER.

In many public school systems there are special teachers to remedy speech defects Call up the Superintendent of schools and ask to be put in touch with the person who is in charge of the Department of Defective Speech This person may be able to direct you to a specialist who could help this young man I suggest this course to avoid wasting time and money on quacks.

Cannot Forget Indiscretions.

Dear Miss Fairfax.

A couple of years ago my husband was chasing around with a married woman who had three grown children, which caused her own husband to leave her. My husband has always contended that as his place of business was open to the public, he could not keep her away. We have children who tried to talk to him at that time, but he wouldn't listen

My problem is do you think he still cares for this woman. I feel I cannot trust him, even though he's good to me and claims he loves me dearly, and I sure love him.

WONDERING.

You have your home, your children, and a husband who claims he loves you, and what is more important, you love him. Why not have a little faith? Some women go after a man, especially if he has a business house open to the public, with as little finesse as a dog catcher goes after a dog. A clever woman does not permit herself to grow morbid over such a situation.

"Pitfalls of Love"

(A Sequel to Marriage Meddlers)

By ADELE GARRISON

I caught back the impulse to tell Noel that Mary, or anyone who knew him, had reason to fear he might stage a scene, for fresh in my memory were his recent violent encounters with Redfield. Since we were virtually alone in the room, I put my hand on Noel's arm and said:

"Of course she isn't afraid you're going to make a scene, but she is afraid you're very angy at her, and I sent her along with her uncle purposely, so that I could have a word with you before you see her."

"What can you say then, Aunt Madge, to excuse that awful exhibition she made of herself? She —you don't think she has suddenly gone out of her mind, do you?"

"No, she hasn't gone mad," I said, giving him a little shake. "But I shall if you don't listen to me. I haven't time now to give you a full explanation of this. In her own good time, if you don't hurry her, I'm sure Mary will.

"But I will tell you this," I went on. "For a very good reason Mary staged one of her cleverest performances tonight, and the dress to which you objected was part of it. I had asked her to do it, but she decided that the scene as we originally planned it would not be convincing, so improvised another. That succeeded, and while she must keep up her impersonation until this party is over, she will not be quite as obtrusive about it.

"So I am asking you, Noel, to be a good sport about this. Mary will not know I have told you anything, so will you go in with me and treat Mary and everybody else as if nothing had happened, saving your reproaches and demands for an explanation until you see her alone, if she doesn't give them to you then of her own volition?"

I had pricked his pride, I saw by the look in his eyes. Then he drew himself up with dignity.

"Of course I shall say nothing to her until she chooses to confide in me," he said a bit haughtily, "and I will carry on as if nothing had happened But—I cannot understand."

"Don't try now," I hold him "Let's hurry in to supper, now, and—thank you"

He made no answer, and the next minute we were in the room where Olga and Dicky were making a valiant effort to keep inconsequent chatter going.

Mary was watching my face intently, and I gave her a private signal which meant "Everything all right Go ahead"

She came up to us at once with her dancing step and slid her hand through Noel's arm, looking at me with a burlesque frown

"Since when did you go in for husband snatching, Auntie Madge?" she demanded. "Please paddle her vigorously, Uncle Dicky, for she's guilty of a far worse crime, she's delaying that gorgeous feast and I'm starving"

Swedish Veal Birds.

2¼ to 2¾ lbs veal cutlets
5 tablespoons fat
1 large sprig parsley, or minced onion
1 teaspoon salt, pepper
¾ cup cream, meat stock or water
2 tablespoons flour

Cut meat into pieces suitable for individual service. Wipe meat with damp cloth and pound with meat hammer, season, and on each piece of meat place dab of fat mixed with parsley or onion. Roll and tie each with string. Sear rolls in remaining fat. Rinse pan with a little hot water or stock and cook over a slow fire for about 1½ to 2 hours, or until meat is tender. Thicken gravy with flour blended with a little water and season to taste Cut away strings to serve. Serves 6.

'SAFEST' PLACE AN ERROR

SAN RAFAEL, Cal.—(U.P.)—Mrs. George M. Holcomb quite naturally decided that the safest place to park her automobile would be in the private parking lot of the California highway patrol. Nevertheless, when she returned she found that the wires had been cut and the generator stolen.

BARCLAY ON BRIDGE

"The Authority on Authorities"

LOSE THE TRICK EARLY

If you have sure tricks available within one of the number required for your small slam, and can locate no ordinary play like a finesse or an effort at suit establishment, a squeeze play is probably your only chance to build the extra one But to make it work, you must let the defenders have their one trick early. Running your own 11 tricks first will usually enable them to discard successfully without difficulty.

	♠ Q 6 5 4 ♥ A 4 2 ♦ A 8 4 2 ♣ K 10
♠ J 10 9 2 ♥ 10 5 3 ♦ Q 9 7 3 ♣ 8 7	N W E S	♠ 8 7 3 ♥ K Q J 7 ♦ J 10 ♣ 6 5 3 2
	♠ A K ♥ 9 8 6 ♦ K 6 5 ♣ A Q J 9 4

(Dealer. West. Both sides vulnerable.)

West	North	East	South
Pass	1 ♦	Pass	3 ♣
Pass	3 ♠	Pass	4 NT
Pass	5 ♥	Pass	5 NT
Pass	6 ♦	Pass	6 NT

South was ab' to see 11 solid tricks, as soon as West led the heart 10, but could locate no play for the needed 12th one. He could not even try to build a diamond thirteener by giving up a trick there, as the defenders could then set him with hearts. So he merely ran the first 11 tricks, hoping the defenders would make a discarding mistake. But they did not, so he gave up the last two and was down one.

If he had understood the "delayed squeeze," he would have let the defenders take the first heart trick and then would have won the second. Proper running of his tricks and discarding right would then squeeze one of the defenders if either had to guard too many things. Following the second heart, he should cash the spade A and K, the club K, spade Q, diamond K and then the clubs.

As he led the last club, he would also have the heart 9 and diamond 6, with the spade 5 and the diamond A-8 in dummy. West would then retain the spade J to guard the 6, but to do it would have to discard from the diamond Q-7, setting up the dummy's second diamond.

Tomorrow's Problem.

	♠ K 2 ♥ A 5 3 ♦ K Q 8 2 ♣ A 9 4 3
♠ Q 8 5 ♥ K Q 10 4 ♦ 6 5 4 ♣ J 10 8	N W E S	♠ 6 3 ♥ J 9 8 7 ♦ A 7 3 ♣ K Q 6 5
	♠ A J 10 9 7 4 ♥ 6 2 ♦ J 10 9 ♣ 7 2

(Dealer: South. North-South vulnerable.)

With the heart K opened, how should South play this deal at 4-Spades?

The queen ant of Australia's white ants lays at least 30,000 eggs a day for a total of more than ten million a year.

HOROSCOPE

For Saturday, March 27.

Initiative and quickened enterprise heighten the prospects of putting over new projects Direct and forceful attack, built upon firm foundations and with practical development of workable ideas and plans, should assure ultimate success.

Those whose birthday it is may prepare for a year of definite growth and advancement in which both enterprise and initiative are highly stimulated for distinct success and with rapidity and well-applied effort, although there are pitfalls awaiting careless or irregular methods.

A child born on this day may have practical talents and be endowed with energy and force to put over constructive projects, despite some secret and subtle motives or dubious purposes.

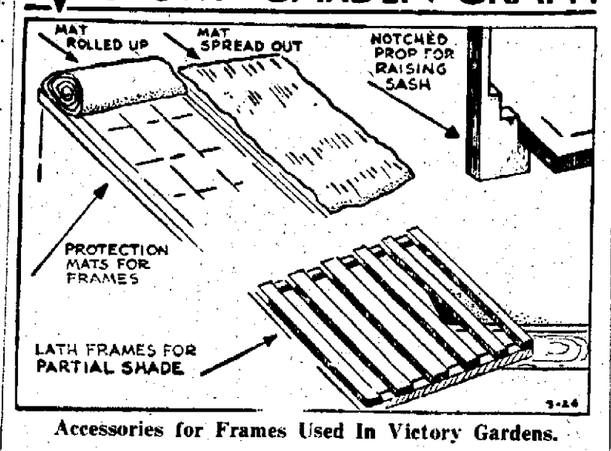
Today's VICTORY GARDEN-GRAPH



Accessories for Frames Used In Victory Gardens.

By DEAN HALLIDAY
(Released by Central Press Assn.)

The proper care of frames used in Victory gardens is easy to learn. The most important requirements are watering, ventilation and covering.

There is little need of watering while the frame is closed and the weather cool. As soon as ventilation becomes necessary, then watering also becomes necessary, usually once a day. Keep the soil in the frame moist, but not soaking wet. It is always advisable to water the frames in the morning so that the plants can go through the night with dry foliage.

Ventilating by raising the sash is essential as the days become warm and sunny. It becomes even more essential as the temperature rises. The sash, however, should be lowered again before the temperature begins to drop late in the afternoon, thus conserving the heat within the frame.

Seedling plants must always be

IN THE CAPITAL-- By Raymond Clapper

WASHINGTON—Both the American and British governments appear to lean against making any definite territorial commitments until the war is over.

That may be one of the important points clarified by the visit of Anthony Eden. In view of Mr. Eden's conversations here, it may be taken as significant that Prime Minister Churchill, in his Sunday broadcast, said that nothing could be more foolish than argue now about frontiers.

Clapper

That is exactly the position President Roosevelt took a year ago when the question of recognizing Russia's claims in eastern Europe was up. Now Secretary Cordell Hull seems to reaffirm that position when he endorses what Churchill says about avoiding details pertaining to the peace arrangements now.

So far as known, the Soviet government has not pressed the territorial question directly and officially since it agreed to defer the subject a year ago under the Molotov agreement, entered into on the insistence of the United States.

Nevertheless, Moscow is determined. Nobody here or in London is deceiving himself that Moscow will not insist on retaining the three Baltic states, for instance. They have been formally annexed in the Soviet constitution. That was done under a plebiscite, taken while Soviet troops occupied them. At the time we condemned the annexation, and Sumner Welles, undersecretary of state, made it the subject of an official statement. We still recognize the three Baltic states and they have regular legations operating here.

This question has become the crux of the issue as to whether to begin recognizing territorial settlements now or to defer all such questions without exception until the end of the war.

One line of argument is that we know Russia is not going to give up the Baltic states and that nobody is going in there with an army to drive her out of them. So why not be realistic and formally agree to the reality now? Why not end the purely token recognition of the non-existent independent Baltic states, close up their legations here, and win as much good will as possible from Russia by gracefully accepting the inevitable? That point of view has been argued here.

The other line, and the one to which we hope to adhere, is that although the time may come when we must accept an accomplished fact, let it be in the peace discussions when all territorial questions are being dealt with. To recognize Russia's claims now would compel us in fairness to recognize other claims, or at least to take a position regarding them. Every one of the United Nations would then consider it necessary to obtain a commitment from us regarding its primary territorial aims. To try to deal with such an array of conflicting claims at this time would be extremely difficult, and almost impossible physically.

Because we hope to defer territorial discussions, it should not be inferred that we expect to prevent Russia from retaining the territory that she has formally incorporated into the Soviet Union. We cannot expect that after Russia has driven the Nazis out, she will listen to any demand that she amend her own constitution to have territory taken away—no matter how it got inside the constitutional boundaries of the Soviet Union.

More profitable at this time than discussion of territorial questions will be the consideration of joint measures—Anglo-American-Russian measures—to cut down shipping losses from submarine and air attacks. That is the greatest menace to our sending of war equipment to Russia. Air and submarine attacks along the Murmansk route last summer were almost prohibitively costly. They are likely to be so again unless all three governments are able to take combined action and make it effective.

STICKS TO GUNS ON DEFERMENT OF FARM LABOR

Colorado Governor Refuses To Be Swerved; Draft Officials Appeal To Washington.

(By United Press)

DENVER, Colo.—Gov. John C. Vivian said today he would "stick to my guns" and oppose any challenge questioning his right to order the blanket deferment of Colorado farm workers.

The Republican governor's unprecedented order developed into a test of authority as Brig. Gen. Harold H. Richardson, state selective service director, announced that he would forward Vivian's directive to Maj. Gen. Lewis B. Hershey, national head of selective service.

Richardson said that meanwhile he would direct Colorado draft boards "to continue the present policy concerning selection of agricultural workers for military duty."

"They are operating under orders from Washington," Richardson said, "and those orders do not call for blanket deferment of farm workers. Each case is studied individually and the question of deferment or selection rests wholly on whether the individual is regularly engaged in a necessary to an agricultural occupation."

Vivian denied that essential farm workers were being deferred.

Vivian's order, the first of its kind ever issued by a governor came while congress was deliberating on the demands of farm states for deferments to ease the farm manpower situation. The order was made against charges by farm bloc spokesmen that selective service headquarters had aggravated the farm labor problem by drafting essential workers.

The controversy over Vivian's action centered in the section of the law which delegates administrative responsibility to governors. Selective service officials at Washington, however, said the statute makes state draft directors the sole authority for ordering deferments.

RESUME LABOR PEACE TALKS ON WEDNESDAY

CIO, AFL Forced to Act When Truman Committee Exposes 'No-Raid Agreement.'

(By International News Service)

WASHINGTON — The AFL and CIO will resume labor peace conferences in Washington next Wednesday in an attempt to lay the groundwork to bring more than 10,000,000 union workers into one big federation, it was learned today.

The Truman committee investigating war production forced reopening of the peace parleys. While waiting to hear UMW President John L. Lewis testify under subpoena, the senate group brought out testimony that a present no-raiding agreement between the AFL and CIO "wasn't worth the paper it was written on."

First objective of the talks next Wednesday will be to work out a new and practical no-raiding truce. Top-ranking labor leaders said such an armistice would be "a long step forward" in the actual merger of the AFL and CIO.

Representing the AFL will be Dan Tobin of the teamsters, Harry Bates of the bricklayers and William Hutcheson of the carpenters. The CIO committee will be composed of CIO President Phil Murray, R. J. Thomas of the auto workers and Julius Emspak of the electrical workers.

However, there still were many obstacles to labor peace. The attitude of the AFL, it was reported, was becoming increasingly belligerent toward the CIO. AFL spokesmen maintained that the federation had done no raiding while the CIO had freely engaged in it.

"Unless the CIO stops they'll know they're in a real union war," an AFL official said. "The AFL has not retaliated so far because it would be harmful to the war effort and harmful to unions themselves. But there is a limit."

The senate committee headed by Sen. Harry Truman (D., Mo.), has been delving deeper and deeper into jurisdictional labor disputes where the CIO and AFL allegedly are raiding each others unions. It heard Murray and AFL President William Green earlier in the week. Murray and Green were inferentially told that they had better get a new agreement banning raiding or congress would do it for them by enactment of laws.

Murray and Green then arranged for reopening of the peace talks.

KNIFES ORDERLY

County Home Resident, 75, In Jail After Attack.

Alex Teevens, 75-year-old resident of the Richland County home, is in jail today faced with a charge of cutting with intent to wound as a result of an attack yesterday upon Mr. and Mrs. Frank Brady, orderly and nurse at the institution.

Teevens allegedly knifed Brady on the shoulder after he ousted him from a drug room where he was seeking medical attention ahead of others awaiting there. Mrs. Brady was cut on the hand, she said, when she sought to protect her husband. The attack occurred shortly after noon while county commissioners, making their monthly visit to the institution, were on the premises.

Complaint against Teevens, who had been a resident of the institution more than 10 years, was prepared by Acting Prosecutor John O'Donnell and signed by Grover Dickson, superintendent at the home.

OILMAN'S WIFE SHOT TO DEATH

Woman Gun-Wielder Claims She Shot Society Leader In Self Defense.

(By United Press)

TULSA, Okla — Mrs T. K Simmons, society woman, wife of a millionaire oil man, known nationally as an exhibitor of fine horses, waited in the lobby of a hotel for a woman last night, followed her to her room, and, soon afterwards, was shot to death.

Mrs. E. B Howard of Fort Worth, Tex., who, police said, had known Mrs. Simmons "for years," said she and Mrs. Simmons had struggled for possession of a pistol with which Mrs. Simmons had threatened her life, and that Mrs. Simmons was shot in the scuffle.

Mrs. Simmons was shot three times, in the heart, the shoulder, and the hand. Mrs. Howard was arrested and lodged in county jail and probably will be charged with murder today.

The shooting occurred in Mrs. Howard's room on the ninth floor of a fashionable hotel. The shots attracted other guests and bell hops who found the body. Mrs. Howard gave her age as 44 and Mrs. Simmons was between 55 and 60.

Beyond claiming that Mrs. Simmons had threatened her life and she had struggled with her in self defense, Mrs. Howard refused to discuss the shooting.

Mrs. Simmons husband also refused to discuss the shooting.

Up and Down THE STREET

Red faces were in vogue last evening at the regular "Ladies Night" party of the Kiwanis club. Players of the workshop group of the Children's theater, presenting the "Gay Nineties Revue" ribbed many of the Kiwanians but kept the best rib for the club's president, Judge H. H. Schettler. Young Margaret Shiplet, costumed in an old nineties dress, searched the audience the entire evening, evidently looking for someone. She finally halted before the Kiwanis president and sang three long verses of "Father, Dear Father, Come Home With Me Now." However, directors of the revue had picked on an old veteran actor and the Judge carried out his part in great style. He walked across the stage at the finale, Miss Shiplet leading him "home."

Mansfield Red Cross officials today were advised that an outstanding radio program, featuring nurse recruiting and emphasizing the need for nurses in war service, will be broadcast over the NBC network Sunday at 12:30 p. m. The dramatic sketch, entitled "That We May Live," will star Helen Hayes, noted actress. Red Cross members in the Richland county area were urged to listen to the program and report their reactions to chapter headquarters.

A letter received by the Richland county Red Cr today expressed the appreciation of the group of hungry soldiers fed by the canteen unit here recently. Sgt. William Skelton who was in charge of the men wrote: "The refreshments furnished us helped to appease the hunger of all, until the next meal served about eleven that same evening." Sandwiches, doughnuts, cookies and coffee were supplied when the troop train stopped at the Pennsylvania railroad station.

MINERS' WAGE TALKS SLOWED

Negotiations Delayed While Lewis Goes to Capital To Testify.

(By United Press)

NEW YORK — Negotiations for new wage contracts covering the northern and southern Appalachian soft coal mines slowed down today with prospects that the subcommittees representing operators and miners would not get into full swing again until next week.

The lull in negotiations was attributed largely to the absence of John L. Lewis, United Mine Workers president, who is in Washington to testify before the Truman committee. Former Sen. Edward R. Burke, leader of the southern operators in their conferences, also was in Washington.

The sub-committee discussing a contract for the northern area adjourned yesterday until next Tuesday, and Ezra Van Horn, chairman, announced the interval will be spent studying wage demands in relation to living costs, and UMW statistics on such costs.

Since the northern area's subcommittee has agreed to a 30-day extension of the existing wage contract, expiring March 31, and to the retroactive application of any agreement finally reached, it no longer is pressed for time.

The southern committee, on the other hand, still is at odds on terms of proposed temporary agreements which would permit operation of the mines past the expiration date of March 31.

The UMW has proposed the southerners adopt a resolution such as that adopted for the northern area, but Burke's group countered with a proposal that negotiations continue until an agreement is reached—without the 30 day clause.

In their resolution, the southern operators repeated the request of President Roosevelt that coal production be continued under terms of the existing contract "until the differences that now separate the parties are peacefully and finally resolved." The resolution would pledge each side to accept the request.

INJURIES FATAL

Mrs. Kathryn Burgett, 91, Dies After Fall at Shelby.

SHELBY — Mrs. Kathryn Burgett, 91, died at her home early this morning from injuries received in a fall at her home last Sunday. Death was attributed to concussion of the brain and internal injuries.

Born in Steubenville Dec. 29, 1851, Mrs. Burgett came to Shelby 34 years ago. She was a member of the First Church of Christ and attended services until her death despite her advanced age.

IN HOLLYWOOD-- By Robbin Coons

HOLLYWOOD—That ban on banqueting recently announced won't be without its compensations, even for banquet-lovers.

It may, for one thing, cut the annual feast of the Oscars, the academy shindig, down to size.

This affair, year by year, seems to take on more and more the attributes of a Frankenstein's monster of movie social life. It seemed like a good idea at the time, but now it's completely out of hand, trampling down more hapless hours than a triple-feature movie.

Coons

The recent one, you know, was going to be different. They were going to get things going early, in quick time, and in fact they did. The assembled glamor, all done out in its finest feathers, hardly had time to snuffle its soup and make a pass at its squab and peas before Jeanette MacDonald was singing "The Star Spangled Banner"—two verses without a bobble—and the jampacked hall was standing on its feet, or an approximation thereof. Squeezed into tables so tightly placed, many of the folks found it difficult to find their feet, much more so to stand on them. In those conditions the national anthem is a challenge to contortionist abilities as well as to patriotism.

So the program started, only a little behind schedule, and before long—quite as usual—it was bogged down in a maze of introductions, speeches, more introductions, more speeches, the reading of letters and telegrams and other hurdles in the path of the banquet's ostensible purpose, the awarding of Oscars.

So much of this palaver and oratory and bowtaking goes on that the suspense is hardly bearable by the time the first award is announced, and somebody jumps up from somewhere to take a coveted certificate for supremacy in something that is doubtless fascinating to the winner but leaves the rest of the folks mystified if not cold.

The excitement over this honor is so intense that five more speakers have to be introduced to introduce the speaker who will make the next award, thus allowing time for the audience to cool off. This goes on and on, broken occasionally by a speaker who announces a "special award" for this or that—usually with a great many poorly chosen words—until finally, at the end of the world, the big moments arrive when they spill the news the folks all want to hear if they aren't too exhausted.

Next year, perhaps, Oscar could be honored at a box-lunch social, each customer bringing his own rations, and that would be a step in the right direction because there's nothing about a box-lunch to provoke oratory. If they did this, and furthermore distributed printed cards covering the technical awards (important but dull after the first couple of hours), Oscar would be brought neatly back into line.
